DRY LAW FUND ONLY ONE NOT PARED IN BILL

Sharp Reductions Made in Costs of Other Major Divisions of U. S.

SLASH OF 14 MILLION

Original Budget Request for More Dry Agents Not Part of Bill

BY CECIL B. DICKSON

Washington — (AP) — All important divisions of the state, justice, commerce and labor departments except the prohibition bureau, felt the sharp scythe of economy in their $124,713,000 supply bill for next fiscal year, reported today to the house.

The Democratic controlled appropriations committee cut $5,070,000 off the budget estimates of $129,784,000, but left untouched the request for $11,389,500 for the dry enforcement unit, the same amount appropriated for the current year. However, it disclosed the budget bureau had reduced the original prohibition bureau request for $13,435,000, by allowing an increase from 2,000 to 2,500 in the number of dry agents.

Total budget estimates for the fiscal year 1933 were $14,287,000 less than 1932 appropriations. Most of this came off the commerce department, largely because of reduced needs of the census and lighthouse bureaus and the economic branch. This department was allowed $44,123,000 less than for this year, and $386,000 below the budget.

The state department received $15,198,000, or $3,166,000 less, although Secretary Stimson testified that 10 revolutions in foreign countries, the world-wide economic situation, and trouble in the far east along with the Geneva arms and other conferences had increased its labors. The allotment was $1,484,000 less than the budget estimates.

The labor department was given $14,229,000, a cut of $155,000 less than budget estimates and $655,000 less than current appropriations. Of this, $10,669,000 is for the immigration service, which reported a sharp decline in entrants and an exodus of foreigners through a drive on aliens and because of the business situation.

For the justice department $51,506,000 was set aside. This is $2,844,000 below the budget estimates and $172,000 below the current appropriations.

The report, drafted by Representative Oliver of Alabama, chairman of the sub-committee in charge of the bill, said the appropriation for the prohibition bureau was the only

PAUL VON HINDENBURG

Reich Chief Again Enters Name In Race

President von Hindenburg Won't 'Desert Post at Serious Time'

Berlin — (AP) — President Paul von Hindenburg, who led an army in the World war, announced today that at the age of 84, he will obey the mandate of millions of Germans and be a candidate to succeed himself when his term expires in May.

He has been president of the German republic for the past seven years.

There is every indication that he will be elected, and it was generally believed that if he had thought there was any chance of defeat he would have offered himself as a candidate. In recent weeks he has said that he would not continue in office unless the nation called him with an unmistakable majority. In that time 2,500,000 persons have signed a petition asking him to run.

The old field marshal's formal statement of his candidacy read:

"After serious consideration I have decided, conscious of my responsibility for the fate of our Fatherland, to place myself at the disposal of the people for reelection.

"The fact that the request to do so came to me not from one party but from wide classes of the population, makes me look upon my declaration of readiness as a duty.

"In the event of my election I shall continue to serve the Fatherland faithfully, conscientiously and with all the strength at my command in order to help it to achieve liberty and equality abroad, unity and revival at home.

"Should I fall of election then I will be spared the reproach that I deserted my post at a serious time.

"For me there is but one real national goal—welding our people together in its struggle for existence, unstinting devotion to every German in the arduous contest for preservation of the nation."

ENTIRE BLOCK IS THREATENED FOR FEW HOURS

10 Telephone Operators Remain on Duty Despite Heavy Smoke

Fire of unknown origin swept through the Abstract and Loan bldg. at Waupaca late Sunday afternoon, causing damage estimated at approximately $50,000. The building houses several stores, professional offices and living apartments. For a time the flames threatened to sweep through the entire block but they were stopped by a fire wall between the burning structure and the telephone exchange.

Twenty minutes before the flames were discovered, R. D. Mann, in whose dry goods store the fire broke out, was in the building. A stranger walking by at about 3 o'clock noticed smoke and called the Waupaca fire department. This volunteer squad, working under Chief Ellsworth Barrington, was unable to cope with the flames which were spreading rapidly and the Scandinavian fire department was called. However, the hose lines brought by that department could not be used because connections did not fit. A supply of hose was then secured by Fire Chief Walter Kasher of the Wisconsin Veteran's home.

About 100 volunteer firemen were pressed into service carrying out equipment, office records and apartment furnishings.

Work until midnight

The volunteer fire squads worked until after 9 o'clock Sunday night before the fire was finally put out. The Abstract and Loan bldg. was badly gutted by the flames, although the brick walls remain standing. Considerable damage was caused to adjoining buildings by smoke and water.

Ten telephone operators played a heroic part in the battle against the flames by remaining on duty in the exchange which was filled with a dense smoke. It was necessary for the girls to change off as they could rest on duty only a few minutes at a time on account of the smoke. The five girls who were on duty when the fire broke out were: Elizabeth Johnson, Agnes Johnson, Florence Hanson, Lucille Knight and Jessie Minton. The five girls who were called to relieve these operators were: Margaret Wilcox, Olive Charbonneau, Ella Rasmussen, Nell Johnson and Alice O'Dell. A crew of 20 men was sent to Waupaca from the telephone exchange head.

Wilbur Opposed To Further Building Of Vets Hospitals

Believes Thousands of Beds Will Be Empty as Result of Mushroom Growth

Chicago — (AP) — Secretary Wilbur said today he believed the federal government had built enough veterans hospitals.

The secretary of the interior, speaking before the annual Congress of medical Education of the American Medical association, suggested more complete use of the beds already available "rather than to increase the already enormous capital expenditure in this field."

Wilbur is a past president of the association.

After the war, Wilbur said, with "enormous wealth at hand there was exuberant mushroom growth of veterans hospitals and as exuberant growth of legislation, opening the doors of these hospitals to more and more classes of patients."

He ventured the opinion that "unless there is another war, or a change in our national methods of dealing with the sick, there will be thousands of empty beds as the result of this mushroom growth, with constant invitation for our legislators to devise methods of filling them at public expense."

"With all due respect," Wilbur said, "congress is not selected on a basis that makes it an ideal board of directors for a national hospital system."

"The practice of medicine," he added, "must still center around the patient, not around the bureaucracy and administration of a physical institution. We must not let too many things come in between the doctor and the sick. We want as little red tape wrapped around our hospitals as is possible. We want to keep them responsible and responsive to local needs and alert to changes and emergency."

JUDGE CARDOZO NOMINATED FOR SUPREME COURT

Hoover Sends Name of New Yorker to Senate as Holmes' Successor

Washington — (AP) — Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, chief justice of the New York State of Appeals, was appointed by President Hoover today to the supreme court vacancy caused by the resignation of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

In view of assurances of backing received by President Hoover, early confirmation is expected. The nomination was forwarded to the senate.

Justice Cardozo has been strongly recommended by various elements describing themselves as liberals. He is a Democrat and a Jew.

Cardozo has the backing of New York's two senators and is also known to be favored by such leaders as Borah of Idaho, who opposed confirmation of Chief Justice Hughes and Judge John J. Parker. The president conferred with Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, and other administration senators before making known his choice finally.

He has been canvassing the nation for weeks looking for the successor to Justice Holmes.

Appointment of Cardozo makes the political line-up of the supreme court five Republicans and four Democrats. Holmes is a Republican.

Justice Cardozo was born in New York city in 1870. He studied at Columbia, Yale, New York university, the University of Michigan and Harvard.

He was admitted to the New York bar in 1891 and since then has served both on the state supreme court and the court of appeals bench.

He is unmarried and a member of the Manhattan, Columbia university, City and Century clubs. He has written numerous legal books and is vice president of the American Law Institute.

Praised in Senate

Senators of all groups praised the appointment of Justice Cardozo in one of the most universal eulogies heard recently on Capitol Hill.

Senator Norris (R., Neb.), the chairman of the judiciary committee, said "it is a very fine appointment, I am very glad it was made."

Senator Reed (R., Pa.) "I think Justice Cardozo is not only one of the great judges of the United States but I am glad to see that the tradition of liberal thought was by Justice Holmes is to be carried on by his successor. I venture to prophesy that Justice Cardozo will have a distinguished career on the supreme court just as he has had on the court in New York."

Senator Copeland (D., N. Y.): "I am very happy over his appointment. His services of 20 years on the court of New York has endeared him to our people. We recognize him as a just, righteous man. I know of no man more highly respected. It is an excellent appointment."

Senator Coughlin (R., Mich.): "I am delighted at the selection of the president. I wish earnestly to commend him."

Chinese Ask League O.K. For Boycott

Urge Drastic Action Unless Redress Is Obtained Under Covenant

(Copyright, 1932, Associated Press)

Geneva — (AP) — China prepared today to call upon the league of nations to authorize an economic boycott against Japan, the most drastic action provided for in the covenant of the league of nations, unless redress is obtained through a special meeting of the league assembly, under Article XV of the covenant, which it has invoked officially.

The decision of W. W. Yen, Chinese spokesman, coincided with a report received by the league from its investigating commission at Shanghai in which the commissioners declared "in state of open war exists" there and "the offensive is entirely in the hands of the Japanese, whose declared object is to capture the Woosung forts and drive all Chinese to a considerable distance" from the city.

The report was signed by Count Galeazzo Ciano, son-in-law of Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy and Italian consul general at Shanghai.

Coupled with the news that Japan had landed 12,000 fresh troops at Shanghai the report stirred the league to its depths. The general assembly was asked for by Mr. Yen last Friday and he said today he was determined to go on with the appeal if the council decided it would not convene the meeting itself.

His next plea, he said, will be under Article XVI of the covenant, which provides for an economic boycott.

Natsume Sato, Japanese delegate, said Japan would oppose the Chinese plea. The Japanese would take exception to the transfer of any portion of the Sino-Japanese dispute to the scope of Article XV, he said.

Americans in Outlying Places Urged to Move Within Limits of Shanghai

By the Associated Press

These were the day's developments in the far east:

At nightfall on Monday the artillery duel across Chapel was resumed, but the engagement was brief and early Tuesday morning there was only scattered firing.

Official estimates said the Chinese had 50,000 men ready for action in the Shanghai area and the Japanese 25,000. The Japanese government was considering sending additional reinforcements.

American consular authorities advised all Americans in outlying places in the lower Yangtze valley to come into Shanghai, and a number left Soochow for this city.

Several shells dropped in the international settlement area patrolled by United States marines, but did not explode. The Japanese command apologized for the gunners' bad aim and the range was corrected.

In Tokio the American, British and French Ambassadors were acquainted with the government's reasons for sending heavy detachments of troops to Shanghai, and at Geneva the league of nations council deferred consideration of China's demand for a meeting of the league assembly.

At Washington it was announced that another joint protest had been filed by the United States and Great Britain against Japan's use of the Shanghai International settlement as a military base.

The Japanese consul at Shanghai apologized to the American consul general for an attack last week on Arthur Ringwalt, American vice consul, and Mrs. L. Young, an American citizen.

Shanghai, China (Tuesday) — Fifty thousand Chinese soldiers stood by in the dark behind the trenches of Chapel today waiting for the Japanese offensive which did not come.

At nightfall on Monday the Chapel guns opened up after a quiet day, but the shooting subsided after an hour or so and presumably the concentrations behind the lines were going on while the Japanese com-

Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, telegraphed in reply that the "holy father whose universal paternalism embraces all peoples" has promised his prayers.

BOYD CO. DIRECTOR YIELDS AT MADISON

Madison — (AP) — R. H. Farness, director of the defunct Boyd Investment company and one of five officials of the firm charged with violation of the blue sky law and embezzlement, surrendered today and provided bond.

Farness explained he was out of the city Saturday when District Attorney Fred Resser issued warrants for him and Joseph M. Boyd, Al T. Rogers, R. R. Kropp and Dr. C. A. Harper. The latter four pleaded not guilty Saturday and were released on bond.

The state charges that the investment firm officials violated securities legislation by authorizing misleading advertisements of a $500,000 bond issue of the Beecroft Building corporation. The embezzlement warrants are based on charges that the officials declared dividends to themselves on Boyd company common stock out of money belonging to the Beecroft company.

U. S. TO APPEAL RULING IN BISHOP CANNON CASE

Washington — (AP) — The government notified the District of Columbia supreme court today it would appeal from the last Saturday's decision which invalidated corrupt practices act indictments against Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and Miss Ada L. Burroughs.

John J. Wilson, assistant district attorney, who acted for the government, said the appeal might be ready for the district court of appeals "within a week." Sixty days are allowed for perfecting it.

Justice James M. Proctor in sustaining a demurrer to the Cannon-Burroughs indictment held it was invalid because it did not allege as a fact that Miss Burroughs had knowledge of the contributions of E. C. Jameson, wealthy New Yorker, to the churchman's 1928 anti-Smith campaign fund.

Giannini Regains Reins Of Transamerica Corporation

Wilmington, Del. — (AP) — The group headed by A. P. Giannini of San Francisco, in the battle for control of Transamerica corporation, today took charge of the annual meeting of the concern and nominated a set of directors favorable to the Giannini interests.

When the annual meeting opened today Hugh M. Morris, former federal judge for Delaware and attorney for Giannini, was presented as the presiding officer. He announced both sides in the contest had a substantial majority of the proxies.

The opposition faction was headed by Elisha Walker of New York, chairman of the board, who fought a battle of proxies against being ousted from control of the big holding concern.

The Giannini interests then nominated the following for members of the board of directors:

A. P. Giannini, Charles D. Eikus, Theodore M. Stuart, A. J. Scamporrino, I. Edward McClellan, John M. Grant, Herbert H. Salinger, George Buck, C. J. Jury, Frank J. McCarthy, Ivan Culbertson, R. C. Springer, Alexander L. Nichols, Edward D. Steel, Jr., and Edward D. Stayton.

Giannini said some of those named as directors were clerks in Morris' office and they would be replaced later by California financial men. He also said he would serve as chairman of the board and John M. Grant would be elected president of the corporation.

Those nominated were later elected by a vote announced as 15,371,578 out of about 22,600,000.

BUYERS HAVE NO PLANS FOR GREEN BAY PLANT

Green Bay — (AP) — No plans have been made for disposition of the Green Bay sugar plant, purchased Saturday afternoon at auction for $75,000 by the bondholders' protective committee, Milton Smith, a member of the committee, said today. The day before, the committee bid in the Menominee Falls plant for $25,000 and had previously purchased the Menominee, Mich., plant. Smith expressed the belief that the Menominee Falls plant will be junked, because it is inefficient and not strategically located. The Menominee, Mich., plant will be held for the time being, with a view to its conversion later into a refinery for cane sugar, Smith said.

Winter Dollar Day Is Set For Next Thursday

Appleton's annual winter Dollar Day, the climax of winter merchandising events, so far as this city is concerned, is scheduled to take place on Thursday of this week. Merchants throughout every business district have been actively preparing for the event which they hope to make the highest of its kind ever staged.

Stores in every classification are included in the Dollar Day for ready-to-wear shops, department stores, hardware stores, drug stores, men's wear shops, shoe stores and other retail shops of importance. They will be identified Thursday by the Dollar Day banners provided them by this newspaper.

The whole story will be told in the Wednesday edition of the Post-Crescent. This edition will carry messages from all the stores participating in this now well-established one-day selling. Supplementing this will be a page advertisement in Tuesday's Post-Crescent, carrying selected items from participating stores, and giving buyers an early idea of the scope of the event.

Because of unusually mild weather so far this season, shoppers can expect to find bargains which are almost unprecedented. The 1932 winter edition of this event will be a powerful pocketbook-opener because of the strength of its offerings, merchants believe.

Most Federal Criminal Cases Arise From Dry Law--Mitchell

SEES NEED FOR MORE OFFICERS IN DEPARTMENT

Regrets "Financial Condition of Country" Won't Permit Larger Fund

Washington—(AP)—Attorney General Mitchell estimates that, not counting the prohibition unit, over 50 per cent of justice department criminal activities arise from the dry law.

He testified before the house appropriations committee on enforcement funds, expressing regret "that the financial condition of the country is such that it did not seem feasible to give the director (Woodcock) another 500 men this year."

A report of the hearings, made public today, showed Mitchell testified he was not satisfied with present-day enforcement.

"I think we have improved it a good deal and made a good deal of progress with a very difficult problem, but I cannot say that I feel perfectly satisfied with the way it is going," he said.

Representative Tinkham (R., Mass.), an anti-prohibitionist, asked Mitchell whether the prohibition bureau enjoyed the same confidence of the people and freedom from complaints as the bureau of investigation.

"Having regard for the state of public mind and on the problems we have to deal with, I would certainly say so," was the reply.

"The prohibition unit has a much more difficult task, dealing with a law that some people feel so bitter against that they do not want it enforced."

Must Face Criticism
"Of course, there have been more complaints from one source and another about the prohibition unit than there has been with the bureau of investigation. You will never have a prohibition unit that will be immune from criticism from one source or another."

"That is due to the fact that there is a good deal of bitter feeling aroused about the national prohibition act and people are bound to criticize those that are trying to enforce it."

Mitchell insisted it was impossible to apportion departmental expenditures between prohibition, enforcement and other local activities.

"Aside from the direct appropriation for the prohibition unit of about $11,000,000," he said, "just about 50 to 60 per cent of the activities of the federal department of justice officials in criminal cases is due to prohibition, but I am not able to give you a break-up as between their criminal activities and the great mass of civil litigation that they handle."

"I think it is fair to say that considerable more than half, maybe 60 per cent, of their activity in criminal work results from prohibition."

"That is just a rough guess."

Director Woodcock of the prohibition bureau told the committee that since Sept. 15, administrators have issued 681 letters authorizing prohibition agents to consume liquor in enforcement work.

In the last fiscal year, Woodcock said $184,342 was spent on liquor and $46,223 on expenses incident to securing evidence.

JURY ACQUITS WOMAN HELD ON ARSON CHARGE

One Hour Required to Reach Verdict in Case of State Versus Mrs. Schumann

Mrs. Henry Schumann, Appleton, was acquitted by a jury in municipal court late Saturday afternoon of two charges, arson and setting fire to a residence in an effort to defraud an insurance company. This was the second time the woman was tried on these charges, the first jury disagreeing at the end of the trial last January. The second jury retired about 4:30 Saturday afternoon and returned with a verdict in an hour.

Mrs. Schumann was arrested last November following a fire in her residence at 1005 W. Haskell. The state charged she set two fires, one in a closet and the second in another part of the house, hoping to collect on a $1,000 insurance policy. The fire caused damage estimated at $700. W. E. Finnegan, deputy state fire marshal had requested her arrest.

In court, however, she claimed the confession was obtained under duress and she denied her guilt. The defense was that one fire started from coals from a stove and the other started from spontaneous combustion.

5,000 U.S. Missionaries Face Evacuation In China

An American missionary population of 5000 in China faces possible evacuation by U. S. warships, if trouble continues to spread in that war-torn land.

The estimate as to their number, based on 1932 reports, has just been made by Julean Arnold, U. S. commercial attaché at Shanghai. He estimates the value of American property that they administer at $50,000,000.

The missionary population includes missionaries, their wives, school teachers, doctors, etc.

Dr. A. L. Warnshuis, secretary of the International Missionary Council, New York, places the number of American missionaries in China at 1978. These he divides as follows: Presbyterian, 870; Methodist Episcopal, 351; Southern Baptist, 107; Congregational, 154; Protestant Episcopal, 138; Lutheran, 123; Baptist, 112; Southern Methodist, 77; Assembly of God, 66; Disciples of Christ, 39; Roman Catholic, 27; other denominations 181.

For 300 years Christian missionaries have carried the cross into the vast land that is China, but today nearly 999 out of every 1000 Chinese still worship the heathen gods of their ancestors.

The best available figures indicate that there are 3,500,000 Chinese Catholics and somewhere in the neighborhood of 750,000 Chinese Protestants, of various denominations, among China's 400 millions.

Because more than 100 different Protestant societies operate in China, practically all independent of each other, it is very difficult to compile Protestant totals. Figures by different estimators vary widely.

The Catholic church, however, cen-tralizes and unifies all its foreign mission activities at Rome, and complete records are kept.

Most of the Protestant missionaries are from America, while the majority of the Catholic missionaries come from Europe.

Protestant missionary work in China began in 1807 with the arrival of Robert Morrison, an Englishman, on an American ship and under American auspices, at Canton. He was followed by the first American missionary in 1830; thus America has been active in the Chinese missionary field, only a little over 100 years and Protestantism only slightly longer.

Despite their relatively small numbers in comparison with China's vast population, Protestant converts are said to have quadrupled in the past 25 years. Sixty per cent of the men converts and 40 per cent of the women converts have been educated sufficiently to read the Bible, despite the illiteracy rate of 2 per cent for China as a whole.

American missions emphasize education, especially higher education for professional life, and also do much hospital and health work.

The Roman Catholic missionary movement in China goes back to the latter part of the 16th century, when priests came in the wake of hardy adventures seeking trade.

The Catholic Atlas, which shows 3,500,000 Catholics in China, also lists 2895 Catholic priests, of whom one-third are Chinese. There are also several Chinese bishops. It is stated that 1366 Catholics are preparing for the priesthood in China.

The church operates 242 orphanages which care for 73,572 persons; several thousand prayer schools which are largely taught by Chinese laymen; 95 large Catholic hospitals and several hundred smaller hospitals and dispensaries administer to the sick; 7919 elementary schools and 192 high schools educate the young.

The Catholic church's property in China is valued at upwards of $50,000,000. All money is supplied from Rome, as funds for Catholic missions all over the world are collected by the Society for Propagation of Faith. Roughly, about one-fourth of this money is collected in America.

More Than 500,000 On List Of Wet Group, Chief Says

Washington—(AP)—A membership of more than half a million is claimed by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment in the annual report of Henry H. Curran, its president.

Accession of 114,514 new members during the year, with 24 state units organized, he said, made it possible for the organization now to campaign aggressively in half the Union.

The year's economic distress, he added, had served to accentuate more than ever before "the enormous waste of revenue in an experiment which has been a scandalous failure for twelve unbroken years."

Curran claimed a number of advances against prohibition, including increased support in both senate and house; for submitting a repeal resolution to the people; promise of roll calls on the issue this session in both chambers; congressional victories by repeal or resubmission candidates in half a dozen districts hitherto considered "unalterably dry;" demands for resubmission by more than 100 organizations, including the American legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Bar association and Junior league; and the vote for repeal in Finland which left the United States only country in the world with national prohibition.

The association spent $522,821 during 1931, and took in $534,507 in contributions, he reported.

APPLETON YOUTH FIRST TO ENROLL FOR 1932 C. M. T. C.

Andrew Heinemann Registers With Lieut. Raymond P. Dohr

Andrew Heinemann, 18, Appleton is the first Outagamie-co youth to enroll for training at citizen's military training camp next summer, according to Lieut. Raymond P. Dohr, county chairman of the C. M. T. C. committee. Heinemann also was the first to enroll last year. Other youths in the county may have signed for service, but Heinemann's application is the first to go through Lieut. Dohr's office.

Outagamie-co's quota of C. M. T. C. students is 25 this year, according to information from Sixth Corps area headquarters of the United States army. Those wanting C. M. T. C. training should file applications as early as possible to insure their getting into camps. Annually the enrollment exceeds the number who can be handled and late applications are often turned down. Early application also permits of correspondence that might be necessary before enrollment is complete. Late applications which cannot be accepted until after correspondence is completed often are refused.

Any county youth wishing to enroll for the training may do so by writing Lieut. Raymond P. Dohr, Appleton. Kaukauna youths can apply to Major Olin Dryer, principal of Kaukauna high school. Any reserve army officer in Appleton and regular army officers at Armory C can give applicants the information they desire.

Physical requirements for training in any of the branches offered specify that a man should weigh not less than 100 pounds; height without shoes, not less than 59 inches for 17 years old, and not less than 60 inches for 18 years or over; chest expansion not less than two inches. A preliminary physical examination is made in Appleton. It consists of examination of eyes, ears, nose and throat.

NINE PROBATE CASES LISTED FOR HEARING

Variety Makes Vegetable Garden Produce Better

Variety is the spice of life in vegetables as well as anything else. It pays to vary the crop each year, trying new varieties. Usually these claims prove to be well founded and by growing improved varieties each year you produce a better garden and more tempting food supplies.

Sweet peas and corn, tender and snappier radishes, beans devoid of any vestige of strings, tomatoes of beautifully regular shape for slicing, all these are merely matters of studying the seed catalogues and ordering the right varieties of seeds. More peas to the pod with an equal number of pods is an inducement that should not be overlooked. The new giant podded dwarf peas of fine quality are worth a trial if you haven't had them and it is likely you will discard the shorter podded older varieties in their favor.

Sow a packet of some of the finer new tomatoes. You won't find plants of the newest varieties in stock at the market gardeners where you can always get the older standard varieties. You will have to raise the new ones from seed yourself.

Each catalogue lists its new things in vegetables. Study these lists and try a few of them. They are usually selected types of well tried varieties or varieties that show decided improvement in some respect of other from the older sorts. They have all had to stand severe testing and trials before the seedman spent his money to get a stock of seed. The quality of vegetables advances each year. There are no new vegetables of consequence offered because the world has been scoured for them and any that are eaten by any of the various races and tribes have been tested and either put into commerce or found unpalatable for our use.

The new vegetables offered are the result of special culture and selection from known strains of seed. They are the result of painstaking plant breeding and growing. Try a few packets each season.

A carrot is a carrot, but if you can get a carrot that matures earlier and produces a bigger root than the kind you have been growing at no more expense, why not get it?

HELPS TO SUPPORT WIDOW, CHILDREN OF MAN HE KILLED

Stillwater, Minn. — (AP) — Michael "the gentlehearted" has learned something about the cost of crime.

Twenty years ago he slew Gregory Pellegrini at Virginia, Minn., in a quarrel over $50.

Since then life for Michael Angela Gentilecore, whose name in English means "the gentlehearted angel," has been one long procession of half-sole and heel's over which he works in the state penitentiary to earn pennies which he sends to Italy for the support of the widow and two children of the man he killed.

Forty-five cents a day is his pay. So far he has sent more than $3,000 to Italy. He was a young man when the crime was committed. Now he is 44.

Thrice he has tried for a commutation of sentence, but each time the pardon board has said "no."

Plan Bull Sale In Connection With Fair Here On February 27

CITY AND RURAL GROUPS TO TAKE PART IN EVENT

Mayor Pledges Appleton's Support to Move to Widen Scope of Monthly Fair

Plans for widening the scope of the monthly stock fair held on the last Saturday of each month at the fair grounds on N. Walnut-st., took definite shape at a conference Saturday afternoon in the conference rooms of the Appleton State bank, of farm and city officials who are interested in the project. The first step in the program will be a pure bred bull auction sale in connection with the fair on Saturday, Feb. 27.

Members of three breeding associations in the county are actively engaged in sponsoring the movement. It was the directors of the Holstein Breeders' association which took the first steps to crystallize the movement and it was at the call of a committee from this association that the conference was held Saturday.

The Brown Swiss and the Guernsey Breeders' associations also were represented at the meeting. Mayor John Goodland, Jr., and Kenneth Corbett, secretary of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, and a group of other business men, were present.

Mayor Goodland pledged the city's support to the movement and told the farmers that the large concrete building on the grounds, formerly used by the street department, was at their disposal for the fair.

In case inclement weather should appear on Feb. 27 the farmers will hold the bull sale in this building. However, if the sale can be held out of doors, the building will be used to house the animals to be sold.

Officer Meitz, Twelve Corners, an auctioneer, offered his services without charge in connection with the sale.

The group named Walter Wiegert of the Holstein Breeders, Theodore Schmidt of the Guernsey Breeders, and C. J. Van Patten of the Brown Swiss breeders to make plans for further fairs in the future. It also was decided that another meeting will be held following the fair on Feb. 27, at which a larger and more representative gathering of farmers and business men will be sought to assist in making plans for the next sale.

Among the suggestions for the March fair were two which met with considerable support. One was to hold an auction sale of horses and another was to feature the sale of home grown produce. It is likely that these two suggestions will be followed in planning the fairs for March and April.

The group also discussed the advisability of staging semi-weekly green markets during the summer at which vegetables and fruit would be sold.

Mr. Corbett told how several other cities are successfully carrying out a project of this nature.

It was decided that at the next meeting an advisory board of farmers should be appointed to meet with city officials and business men to set up rules and regulations to govern future fairs.

WIND UP TRAINING COURSE WITH HIKE

15 Scout Leaders Participate in Weekend Affair on Wolf River

The 1931-32 training conference for valley council boy scout leaders closed with a weekend camping party of scout leaders at the cottage of Dr. J. M. Donovan, Neenah, on the Wolf river, three miles southwest of Fremont. Fifteen leaders from Appleton, Neenah, Menasha and other cities included in the council participated in the hike.

Topics discussed at the Saturday afternoon session were "How to Measure Troops" and "How to Measure Good Scoutmasters." M. G. Clark valley scout executive, acted as topic leader. Herb Holte, chairman of the training committee, was unable to attend the meeting because of illness.

The Sunday program consisted of outdoor activities, a feature of entertainment being an old fashioned "shiny" game on the ice. An empty can of 10-pound capacity served as the puck.

An old fashioned "Mulligan" stew supper, prepared by James Mackin, scout camp cook, was served Saturday evening.

The section of the building occupied by the Holmes Bakery also was badly damaged by flames, smoke and water. Buildings endangered by the flames included those housing the telephone exchange, the post office, and the Christy department store.

$75,000 LOSS IN IOWA

Iowa Grove, Iowa (AP)—Damage estimated in excess of $75,000 resulted from a fire which for a time threatened an entire block of business establishments today.

20 PCT. SLASH EXPECTED FOR BADGER FAIR

Reduction Won't Eliminate Event, Markets Department Believes

Madison (AP)—A reduction in the appropriation for the 1932 state fair is virtually certain to be made by emergency board when it begins hearings Wednesday on contemplated cuts in all state departments up to 20 per cent of their total budget. If the full 20 per cent is applied to the fair appropriations, which were $255,000 annually for this year and last the aggregate reduction would be $51,000. At any rate the department of agriculture and markets hopes to have the 1932 fair, Commissioner Charles L. Hill said today.

It also is expected that the state appropriations for the county fairs, totaling roughly $300,000 will be sliced. This would mean a cut of $60,000 at the 20 per cent maximum. The emergency board can pare the appropriations as it sees fit under the authority given it by the special session of the legislature at the request of Governor LaFollette. This action was taken to meet an anticipated dropping off in receipts this year. The legislative authority provided the 20 per cent maximum.

Commissioner Hill said he had no idea how much the fair appropriations would be shaved down, but that the department had contemplated a voluntary reduction of $25,000 for the state fair before any prior action was taken.

Still Hope For Fair

"Even with less money to spend we hope to be able to conduct the fair this year," he said. The cost of the state exposition in 1931 cost $232,000, or $23,000 less than the entire appropriation.

The legislation making the $255,000 allowance, which included $15,000 for property and equipment provided that all fair receipts go into the general fund and that the difference between the receipts and the cost of the fair should be made up out of the department's appropriations, but not to exceed $50,000.

The actual deficit between receipts and expenditures was $62,000 which the state had to pay.

This according to the letter of the law left $12,000 to be met outside of the appropriations of the department of markets.

The agriculture department will be among the first to be heard by the emergency board. Chairman Hill said that with various economies effected so far that agency of government, on the present basis, expected to return to the state treasury between $35,000 and $50,000 at the end of the fiscal year.

A meeting of the heads of all divisions under the department has been called for this afternoon to draft recommendations to the emergency board for cutting down the appropriations. The board will receive such recommendations from all departments.

All items in the budgets will be gone over in detail.

MERCURY DROPS TO ZERO IN COLD SNAP

Snow and Warmer Weather Predicted for This Vicinity Tonight, Tuesday

Appleton and vicinity was in the grip of another cold wave over the weekend as the mercury dropped to zero. At 6 o'clock Sunday morning it reached zero.

The lowest temperature recorded here since last month.

The frigid blast was a general throughout the middle west Saturday and Sunday, sub-zero temperatures being recorded in some sections.

Light snow is probable for this vicinity tonight and Tuesday, the weatherman says. The mercury is set for a rise tonight. At 6 o'clock this morning the mercury registered 4 degrees above zero and at noon it registered 12 degrees above.

Worker Prostrated While Digging Tunnel For Sewer

The density of the air last Thursday day of the fog, brought on air condition in the sewer tunnel on Locust-st. which resulted in the prostration of one worker, and necessitated the artificial transmission of air into the tunnel.

Neither candles nor matches could be kept lighted in the tunnel because of the low content of oxygen in the air.

It was found that a candle would burn close to the ground, but when held up would be snuffed out by the bad air. Likewise, a man bending down could breathe much easier than one standing up. A. J. Hall, superintendent of the Appleton Water plant, explains that the oxygen content of the air follows the lower grade, and thus adheres more closely to the bottom of the tunnel.

The density of the fog decreased the oxygen in the air on that day, and by the time the air got down to the tunnel there was little oxygen in it, as the deeper the tunnel the less atmospheric oxygen passage there is through the ground.

A fan was placed at the opening

THREE OVERCOME WHILE AT WORK IN SMOKEHOUSE

Three employees of Hoptensperger Brothers, Inc., 418 W. College-ave, were overcome by smoke while cleaning a smokehouse in the rear of the meat market about 11 o'clock this morning. None of the men suffered serious results and all were back at work this afternoon.

The three men were: Harvey Helms, 504 W. Wisconsin-ave; Karl Dybuk, 507 W. Garfield-st; and Raymond Hoptensperger, 602 W. Brewster-st.

The three had entered the smokehouse about an hour after it had been in use and they first noticed they were being affected by the smoke when they began feeling faint. They rushed from the compartments and collapsed outside. Workmen called for a pulmotor and a squad of firemen responded, but it was necessary to use the machine only on Hoptensperger. The others revived in a few minutes.

GRAPHIC EDITOR TO ADDRESS STUDENTS

Paul U. Kellogg Will Speak at Chapel Next Thursday Morning

Paul U. Kellogg, editor of The Survey and Survey Graphic, will address Lawrence college students in special convocation at 10 o'clock Thursday morning on "Our Northern Border" (The American-Canadian substitute for fortified frontiers). The public is invited.

Mr. Kellogg is coming to Appleton through the cooperation of the Adult Education Council Speakers bureau, Chicago. He will leave immediately after his address here to speak to the Green Bay Rotary club at noon.

Mr. Kellogg is recognized internationally as a keen student of social developments in their dynamic aspect. He had his roots in the city room of a middlewestern newspaper as reporter and city editor of the "Kalamazoo (Mich.) Daily Telegraph."

It was his journalistic job of getting and presenting the facts that led to his founding Survey Associates, a modern educational institution built around a periodical rather than a college campus.

He directed the Pittsburgh survey in 1907-08, out of which grew the department of Surveys and Exhibits of the Russell Sage Foundation and the Calumet Fund, which was instrumental in eliminating the 7 day week and 12 hour day in steel.

The speaker is co-author with Arthur Gleason, of a book which ten years ago predicted the leadership of J. Ramsey MacDonald and the rise of the labor party in England. His magazines were the first to take up long range factors in predicting and meeting unemployment.

LAUD RELIEF CAMPAIGN OF LEGION POST

Organization Receives Nationwide Publicity in Drive for Jobs

That the Oney Johnston post, American legion, is getting nationwide publicity and praise in its unemployment relief drive is evidenced by weekend reports of metropolitan newspapers, nationwide radio hook-ups, and letters received here from American legion officials throughout the country.

Letters received by H. H. Helble, post commander from national and state officials, compliment the local post on the success of the campaign here and that the work of the post is an inspiration to groups throughout the United States.

The Johnston post is one week ahead of other groups throughout the country, and by tonight it will have given jobs to approximately 200 men and women who a week ago were in search of employment. Most of these men and women are people with families of two or more children.

The house-to-house canvass in the "man-to-a-block" campaign will be officially closed by legion workers tonight, it was announced this morning by George Dame, general chairman of the drive.

Final Drive Tonight

Workers tonight will visit homes in various wards of the city, which so far have been unsolicited. With $90 unemployed registered at the legion office in the city hall, workers will make a final attempt to secure as many jobs as possible.

By Tuesday morning most unemployed women in the city will have been placed, according to F. A. W. Hammond, director of the employment office. More women than men have been placed on jobs in the campaign, he says. Seven more women were sent out on jobs this morning.

Judging from reports of men who were sent out on jobs, the "man-to-a-block" drive, workers are well satisfied with the arrangement. Mr. Hammond says. Some workers have received steady employment, while others will continue working at Appleton residences through the summer, he says.

Names of registered persons, and those on jobs are to be compiled in alphabetical order this week, and by Saturday the office in the city hall will be through with its rush and can settle down to routine, Mr. Hammond declared.

Robes Go Through Spiritual Laundry

It's an old Japanese custom for Shinto priests at Elheji temple, Kyoto, to purify the emperor's clothes during elaborate ceremonies every year. Above are shown the spiritual laundrymen bringing Emperor Hirohito's garments back to Tokio after purification, so that he will be prosperous during 1932.

Turk Says Fraternalization Surest Means Toward Amity

Geneva (AP)—Tewfik Rushdi Bey, Turkish foreign minister, told the world disarmament delegates today that the political importance of frontiers will soon be negated by fraternalization among nations which, he said, is the surest means of arriving at disarmament.

Turkey, he said, has been aiming at understanding with her neighbor nations, but opposed any kind of alliances except one—an alliance among all nations against war.

He supported the French proposal for internationalizing civil aviation and urged prohibiting the manufacture of offensive weapons. One of the shortcomings of past conferences, he said, was the prohibition of discussion of some subjects which are bound up closely with peace.

Eric Colban of Norway said economic disarmament should be accomplished simultaneously with military disarmament and suggested an international agreement to end international difficulties. He also said Norway favored budgetary and direct limitation of armaments and prohibition of the manufacture of aggressive weapons.

"We must take away the temptation to use force," he said, and added that the French proposal for an international police force would be practical only if it were accompanied by reduction of armaments.

Foreign Minister Branco of Portugal said reparations and debts should be considered together with disarmament. He approved budgetary limitation and said when compulsory arbitration is accepted by all countries moral disarmament would not be necessary.

REVIEWS ISSUES OF CONFERENCE

Difficulties Involved in Disarmament Discussed by Student

Some of the issues and difficulties involved in disarmament and the technicalities attending the disarmament conference at Geneva were outlined by Roland Beyer, Kaukauna, a student at Lawrence college, in an address before Lawrence college students at Lawrence Memorial chapel Monday morning.

The technicalities pointed out were: computing the potential strength of the nations in peace time; the hatred, intensity and feeling of unrest found in the European nations today as a heritage of the world war; the reparations, war debts and the moral let-down and general cynicism of the present day.

Economic difficulties were found in the tariff walls, the falling gold standard, and the intensified struggle for foreign markets among the nations of the world. The social problems of imminent social revolutions due to the starving millions scattered throughout the world today, the race problems and the danger of overpopulation were also enumerated.

Mr. Beyer also outlined the encouraging tendencies for world peace at the present time, including in this group the League of Nations, the various peace efforts, conferences and pacts and the labor and social organizations which are opposing war at the present time.

Mrs. Elsie Wegner 1045 E. Vine-st, who has been ill at her home for 13 days with bronchial pneumonia, is reported to be convalescing.

BRITAIN ISSUE AS IRISH GET READY TO VOTE

Two Killed While Delivering Political Addresses in Campaigns

Dublin (P)—The Irish election campaign, one of the chief issues in which is the question of closer or more distant relations with Great Britain, entered its last day today with the blood of two citizens, one of them a candidate, across its trail.

Patrick Reynolds, a member of the government party in the Dail Eireann and candidate for reelection, and a detective named McGeehan were shot and killed while delivering political addresses at Foxhill, County Leitrim. A man named Joseph Leddy was arrested.

The two men were witnesses the day before at an inquest into the death of James Vaughn, a leader of the opposing Republican party, who, it was charged, had been ill-treated by guards while a prisoner in Ballinamore barracks. McGeehan testified that Vaughn had been treated in the kindest manner.

President Cosgrave, who after 10 years in office is making his fifth appeal to the country in tomorrow's voting, argues that Great Britain is Ireland's best market and that the Saorstait will benefit tremendously through empire preference tariff treaties which the present government should be able to negotiate with Westminster.

Eamonn de Valera, leader of the Flanna Fail, principal opposition candidate, holds on the contrary, that Ireland can never prosper until she has severed all the links that bind her to the British empire and makes herself independent and self-contained.

Would Abolish Oath

Adherents of de Valera have promised abolition of the oath to the British king from the Saorstait constitution, modification of the present position of the governor-general in the Saorstait, discontinuance of payment of £2,000,000 (about $10,500,000) in land annuities to England, and provision of employment for the country's jobless.

There was every prospect, however, that the election would be one of the quietest ever held in the Saorstait. The Flanna Fail, fearful perhaps lest they alienate conservative opinion, have conducted a remarkably moderate campaign. Disorders from an quarrel have been few.

De Valera has noted he will gain perhaps 77 or 80 seats in the Dail's membership of 153.

There is widespread feeling among politicians, however, that the Gosa-grave party, Cumann Na nGael, with its allies, the farmers, the independents, and independent labor, will find its present membership of 85 reduced somewhat, but will be still in the majority.

The present state of the parties is: For the government, Cumann Na nGael, 65; Farmers 6; Independents 12; Independent Labor 2; total pro-government 85. Against the government, Flanna Fail 56, Independent Republican 1, Labor Party 10, total anti-government, 67. Two seats are vacant.

For the first time in the 10-year history of the Saorstait all candidates are avowed constitutionalists. De Valera, although advocating further radical separation of the Saorstait from Britain, believes that this can be effected within the present constitutional structure.

The Dail was dissolved Jan. 29. The Dail will convene March 2.

item in the bill over which there was disagreement, Representative Tinkham (R., Mass.), objected to the re-appropriation of $175,000 left over from this year, and desired to reduce the outlay.

"The majority of the committee felt that as this appropriation is for the enforcement of a law which presents unusual difficulties at times in its enforcement, the appropriation should not be reduced," Oliver wrote.

Asked More Agents

In testimony before the sub-committee, Attorney General Mitchell said the prohibition unit had asked for 500 additional agents on the basis of the recommendation of the Wickersham commission's report on dry law enforcement. This fiscal year the force was increased from 1,500 to 2,000.

Penal institutions were allowed $13,866,000 or $2,304,000 less than budget estimate but $11,000 more than for this year.

Under the commerce department, $7,553,000 was allotted aircraft navigation facilities and $1,301,000 for commercial aircraft regulation. The lighthouse bureau was given $10,783,000.

As provided in the agriculture and interior department appropriation bills for next year, legislative provisions are carried to prevent increase in salaries, or the filling of any vacancy without special permission of President Hoover. A provision stipulates that no automobile costing more than $750 may be purchased excepting the cars for the secretaries.

VESPER GIRL CHAMP CHERRY PIE BAKER

National "Cherry Week" Opens Under Direction of Sturgeon Bay Man

Sturgeon Bay (P)—An eight-day national campaign to interest the public in the products of the cherry growers was formally opened today under the direction of Karl Reynolds, Sturgeon Bay, chairman of a committee of canners, growers and public officials.

Oliver Charbonneau, Vesper school girl, will reign as champion cherry pie baker of Wisconsin by virtue of her display of skill in final elimination tests, or a $50 prize at Madison Saturday. More than 1,000 high school and 4-H club girls competed.

Gov. Philip LaFollette joined the "Cherry Week" observance with a radio address from the Chicago studios of a national broadcasting company and is scheduled to speak again at 9:30 p. m.

Next Monday Miss Charbonneau will travel in Chicago against state champion from New York and Michigan for the national cherry pie baking crown and a prize of $500.

Miss Lorraine Miller, Milwaukee, won second prize in the Wisconsin finals and Josephine Moeller, Sturgeon Bay, won third prize. Mrs. Philip LaFollette and Dean Chris L. Christensen, of the University college of agriculture, were presented with the prize winning pastries.

Germaine Rammer, president of the organization and Miss Lenora May, athletic director at high school, selected the group.

Pioneer farmers in the middle west planted thousands of trees. It is estimated they planted 210,000 acres in Iowa, 40,000 in Illinois, 14,000 in Ohio, and 10,000 in Missouri.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

He encouraged privateers to attack British commerce.

Washington crossing the Delaware.

George Washington's genius in training raw recruits, his ability to rally Congress and obtain funds, munitions and provisions stood the colonial army in good stead in the early, trying days of the revolution.

He was a stern disciplinarian. Dishonesty drew heavy penalties. Deserters and plunderers were flogged. He once erected a 40-foot gallows as a warning.

On the other hand, Washington won the devotion of his men by seeking better treatment for them from Congress. He often complained of their short rations.

His shrewd generalship in seizing Dorchester Heights, overlooked Boston, on March 4, 1776, forced the British to evacuate the city and leave behind 200 cannon and ammunition.

But when Washington hurried to the defense of New York he was badly beaten, forced to retreat in New Jersey and was nearly captured. The dark days that followed, however, were climaxed by three brilliant victories. Forced to flee across the Delaware at Trenton on Dec. 8, 1776, he seized every boat within 100 miles so that the enemy could not follow.

His Life Story

He forced the British out of Boston.

Deserters and plunderers were flogged.

Then, on Christmas night, he recrossed the ice-filled river with 2400 men, completely surprised the enemy soldiers, took 1000 prisoners and a large amount of arms and munitions.

This victory, coupled with that shortly afterward at Princeton, revived the colonists' lagging spirits, brought a rush of new recruits and encouraged foreign sympathy to the Americans' fight.

Senders Of Valentines Employ Modern Methods

BY MABEL GREENE

New York (CPA)—Well, well. It's probably just another of those wild rumors that get about town, but they do say that Dan Cupid, the small, plump marksman whose target specialty is human hearts, has gone and traded his bow and arrow for a sub-machine gun.

What with telephone and telegraph companies, to say nothing of florists, candy-makers and the like, merging with St. Valentine, the old-fashioned ammunition was plainly too slow to keep up with the competition. And if the little fellow really has changed his equipment, as rumor has it, he undoubtedly did it to keep the other fellow from muscling in on his racket. Merely another evil of this here machine age.

However, whatever Cupid's weapons, the passion that inspires the present-day Valentine seems to be no different from the passion that sent the first Valentine on its way long before a postman was heard of. Most of the sugary sentimentalities of the old-time lace edged missive have found a substitute in modern vice-cracking verse, but the fact remains that many thousands of people, young and old, are still concerned enough over affection to send valentines of one kind or another.

The modern lover has a wide variety of ways by which he sends his valentine message to the girl of his choice. Thanks to the telegraph companies he can put a ready-made phrase on the wires for as low as 20 cents. Last year about 300,000 folks did that and an equal volume of business is expected this year.

Postmaster John J. Kieley said today that the volume of mail on and preceding Valentine's day is not particularly greater. Cynics may say that this is a blow at the grand old tradition of Valentine's day when the lives of seven saints are celebrated. But it really is just an indication that sentiment is keeping step with the times and utilizing newer and faster methods of communication.

Director Finds Chinese Do Not Kiss In Pictures

BY JESSIE HENDERSON

Copyright, 1932, By Cons. Press

Hollywood—(CPA)—Between trying to get through the great wall of Peking after 6 p. m. with martial law clamped down on everything and discovering that Chinese girls don't kiss in Chinese pictures, Leonard Fields of Hollywood is having his own difficulties in China at the moment.

In a letter just received here he says that the great wall stuff isn't so bad, but what to do about kisses for the screen? Fields is making pictures in China for RKO Radio.

"Heroes and heroines do not kiss in Chinese movies," he complains. "Simply because there's no such thing as a kiss in Chinese behavior. It is a pure European importation, but I must admit that these Chinese actresses have taken the importation to heart and can give some of our Hollywood girls a run for their money in this particular gesture. Ordinarily, Chinese girls make love with their hands. Instead of kissing with their lips they kiss with their fingertips. In view of the fact that their hands are more graceful than a swan's neck and tender enough to make a piece of silk look rough, this isn't such a bad break, at that."

Bar Aids Business

Chinese movie houses have an idea which makes any picture a wow and which might well, Fields says, be introduced into Hollywood. In the middle of the picture there's an intermission and a slide flashes on the screen with the title "Bar Interval."

The Outagamie-co board will gather at the courthouse at 9:30 tomorrow morning for its annual February meeting. He session will last four days and the board will then adjourn sine die, as the new board will start its work following the elections in April.

Perhaps the most important matter the board will face will be that of setting salaries for the next year. It is definitely known that the salary committee, which met Friday and Saturday, will recommend salary reductions ranging from 10 to 20 per cent. The regular salary committee was assisted in its work by a special committee of the county board. The members of the two groups were: Patrick Garvey, Oneida, C. J. Burdick, Black Creek, and H. A. Rasmussen, Bear Creek, salary committee; R. C. Schultz, Cicero, A. W. Laabs, Grand Chute, F. P. Young, Second ward, Appleton, and F. O. Smith, Hortonville, special committee.

Various other routine matters, including committee reports and the allowing of bills, will be before the board at this session.

"UNJUDICIAL CONDUCT"

Circuit Judge Zimmerman, who took an oath to uphold, first of all, the constitution of the state, and thought he was required to hold the old oleo law invalid, is an odd sort.

When he found that the legislature had not complied with the constitution in passing this law he so declared. Picture his astonishment when he found that he was assailed for the blunder instead of the legislature that made it.

In a talk before the county board at Madison he declared that when that law was passed the lawyers in the legislature and in the attorney-general's department knew it couldn't hold water but shrugged their shoulders and let others humbug themselves and humbug the farmers as well.

Here, indeed, is a peculiar judge. He talks back. He is actually exposing one of the shameful phases of politics. He will not consent to let the politicians get away with it by besmirching him.

And now the deputy attorney-general, Mr. Wiley, declares the "judge has indulged in unjudicial conduct." Is it unjudicial or is it merely unusual? Anyway, it was a startling thing to those who thought they cleared themselves by loading the blame onto an innocent man.

And yet Mr. Wiley is right. The judge should have held his tongue. He should let the politicians get away with anything.

What matter it that he is vilified, traduced and brutally misrepresented? What matter it that truth is crushed and ground into the earth and false words are emblazoned on our banners? What matter it that had the judge held otherwise he would have been just a common crook?

Surely none of these things matter so long as a political face can be saved. And here is a remarkable thing, a most remarkable thing. After Judge Zimmerman held that the legislature had failed to comply with the constitution the ruling was accepted without an appeal, the old law was abandoned and a new one written to comply with the demands of the constitution as outlined by the judge.

For ourselves we never heard of such a procedure before. We never heard of a circuit court's ruling that a law was unconstitutional being taken as final without an appeal. It must have been abandoned because it was so plainly in violation of the constitution that even a good argument could not be made to uphold it.

But, anyway, Mr. Wiley is right. Someone must be singled out for blame when legislatures blunder, and it must never be the legislature. It must be some court, and Judge Zimmerman with the usual practice by exposing his detractors.

PLANT PATENTS

In response to a universal demand among horticulturists that the originator of a beautiful flower or a delicious fruit be given as much financial protection as the inventor of a can opener, the United States Patent Office has just issued the first patent on a utilitarian plant. It covers a variety of dewberry shorn of the thorns heretofore so distressing to berry pickers.

The granting of plant patents comes as a result of long study and cautious preparation by the government. This experiment has been viewed with considerable trepidation because the intricacies of patent procedure are certain to entangle with the fickle mysteries of plant germination. Mechanical devices can be controlled because they are all identical but nature's manufacturing processes often wander afield, for she never produces two things alike.

Heretofore, the originator of a species rarely profited and he was forwarded by so much as having his name connected with the result. Most plant breeders have been patient, loving fanatics who freely gave their discoveries to the world.

Under the new protection, men like Luther Burbank, had he chosen, could have profited enormously and Judge J. H. Logan would have made a fortune out of the loganberry—a cross between the blackberry and the raspberry produced in his California garden.

The new plant patent law opens up a vast field for private research by offering an incentive for experimenters to create new varieties whose profits would be their own. At the same time many pleasant prospects are in store for patent lawyers in following the trails of nature's vagaries.

SAFEGUARDING STALIN

Civilization does not seem to have produced as yet a state of society in which the titular head of government is free from the danger of assassination.

Russian communism is supposed to provide relief from the most pressing ills of society and to set an example to the rest of the world of an existence thus far unequalled for the happiness and comfort of the greatest number of individuals.

Yet this new social experiment in Russia has served but to accentuate the personal danger which surrounds the life of Joseph Stalin, the communist dictator.

No royal monarch was ever guarded more closely than Stalin. He is reported as living a secluded life in a small village adjacent to Moscow and guarded night and day by carefully selected troops from the famous Guards of the Red Flag. He dines alone and never receives anybody unless a third party is present. When he travels the streets, his entourage is a procession of armored cars. Everything humanly possible is done to safeguard his life.

No great governmental leaders are ever immune from the danger of fanatics with homicidal intentions. Under our own enlightened republic the record of our presidential assassinations gives stern warning of the extraordinary precautions necessary to protect the life of the President of the United States.

Joseph Stalin's death at this time would be a serious, if not fatal, blow to Russian communism. His fall might very easily throw the Soviet republics into chaos and mark the end of the present revolutionary experiment.

It is this precarious foundation of a new and as yet untried social order on which Stalin stands and the need for his leadership to maintain its stability, that makes necessary the unusual safeguards for his protection.

THE ROAD BACK

Mr. Jack Dempsey is on the road back. The highway is one which he hopes will lead again to the rainbow's end.

He is "building" himself up to fight Max Schmeling for the heavyweight crown and along his route he is pulling up at a few four corners to test his bumpers and horse-power in knocking over a various and selected assortment of behemoths who hibernate in the substrata of pugilism.

His progress is being watched with interest, for even a partial return to his old fighting form may sweep aside the mediocre talent now obstructing his way and restore the diadem which has been the pawn of boxing commissions ever since Mr. Tunney cast it aside for George Bernard Shaw and the social register.

Mr. Dempsey's career in pugilism has always been colorful and no one will begrudge him his attempted "come back," provided he builds his ballyhoo for the championship with the same material that won him an enviable reputation as a hard fighter.

But if he comes back we will know that the fountain of youth has been found and that fairies still flit from flower to flower.

Opinions Of Others

POLISH ORGANIZATIONS
The annual convention of the Organization Council of Poles Abroad met in the Senate chamber, attended by 16 representatives of the most important Polish centers in Europe and North and South America. The session was inaugurated by Prof. Szymanski, Mr. Raskiewicz, the Senate speaker, delivered a welcome speech. Director Lenartowicz of the council, who recently returned from America, made a report on the council's work, especially among the Poles in the United States. Congressman Szabowski spoke on the economic collaboration of Poles abroad with Poland. Congressman Leopold Tomaszewski spoke of the needs of the Polish press abroad.

The report that the largest Polish-American organization finally had decided to collaborate with the council was received enthusiastically. Kurjer Warszawski (Warsaw) Poland.

WELL, we have to give Congress credit for something . . . it's been moving faster and doing more things than it has for a decade . . . ordinarily, Congress spends its time talking and talking and paying strict attention to the elections . . . but somehow, Congress HAS been working a little more than before and matters which usually take a year or so to complete have been wound up in a comparatively few weeks . . . one of the big complaints about the American form of government has been that it's too darned slow to get anywhere . . . but apparently the boys are waking up . . . well, they almost had to . . .

This monkey business at Shanghai has a peculiar twist. In most other wars it's been shoot 'em up and to hell with the bystanders. But over in Shanghai and in the surrounding territory, both outfits have been verily, verily careful of the non-combatants belonging to other nations. Sooner or later, of course, somebody is going to be hurt and a lot of trouble will start.

Buy 'Em a Tandem Bicycle

Saturday morn was brisk. Plenty brisk. In fact, darned cold. It was about nine a. m., with the wind blowing lustily that we saw a small couple come shivering down the street. And, sitting high in the rumble seat were two cops, with no overcoats or earmuffs, trying to look dignified.

But two cops in a rumble seat on a cold morning do NOT look dignified. In fact, two cops in a rumble seat at ANY time look just a trifle wistful and not very tough.

From what reports we can get, there's more discussion about the Chinese-Japanese war by Americans who wonder if they'll have to fight eventually than there is by the Japanese-at-homes themselves.

Movements on the Political Front

The Democrats are thinking of turning to John W. Davis again after Al Smith and Franklin Roosevelt get through cutting each other's throats. Talk, talk, haven't they heard that we're a potential candidate? Jonah for president on the Democratic ticket and all the Democratic worries are over.

As soon as we can sell the Republicans on the same idea, everything will be fixed and the government can save the expense of an election next fall. Candidate on both tickets—there's an idea a lot of fellows have been neglecting to get.

Old age whispered: "Youth, beware! Love will lead you into care."

"Love is duty, love is pain, Sacrifice and loss and gain."

"Look at us, grown old and gray; Would you fade the self-same way?"

"Would you have your features wear Such deep-graven lines of care?"

WHAT TO DO ABOUT CANCER

The nature and cause of cancer are still unknown and therefore no specific cure is known and the best means of prevention for any individual is a matter of the opinion of his physician.

Probably more than one disease is covered by the term "cancer." Physicians recognize at least three distinct types of malignancy, first carcinoma, the common internal organ cancer of persons of mature age; second, epithelioma, the familiar surface of skin cancer of elderly persons; third, sarcoma, the most rapidly developing and most quickly fatal type of cancer of bone, gland or flesh of persons of any age, even children.

To the best of our present knowledge, no type of cancer is contagious, infectious or communicable in any way, except by direct inoculation. Ordinary soap and water personal cleanliness is simple precaution for anybody to take in handling, living with or nursing a cancer patient.

Most students of cancer agree that cancer is not hereditary, but some students are inclined to think certain individuals are born with a deficiency of whatever it may be that keeps most of us immune from cancer. Not that one is more likely to have cancer if one's parent or grandparent had it. That certainly is not so.

Cancer is so common that it is rather unusual for more than two generations of any family to escape it altogether.

The wise man or woman, when confronted with any suspicion or possibility of cancer, applies at once to his or her physician for examination and advice. The fool tries whatever quick treatment happens to be making the loudest noise at the moment.

How many quick cancer remedies or quick cancer healers be distinguished from reputable or trustworthy ones? That is very easily done. If the remedy or the healer pretends, promises or guarantees cure it or he is a humbug. The honest physician holds out no promise of success, but only does the best he can. The success of the treatment in any case depends largely upon early recognition of the nature of the trouble and prompt application of whatever treatment the case requires.

Even the most indifferent layman must heed certain danger signals and beware of "taking a chance" by ignoring them or postponing the visit to the physician. Such danger signals are:

1. "Dyspepsia," loss of weight and loss of strength, developing in a man past middle age.

2. Any small obstinate sore on cheek or lip of an elderly person, which refuses to heal or breaks open again and again.

3. Any unusual discharge or bleeding from a woman who has borne several children and who is past her menopause.

4. Any alleged internal "piles" in a person past middle age whose health and strength begin to decline insidiously.

Procrastination, false modesty or in some instances reluctance to learn the truth, keeps many a victim of cancer from being cured.

Surgery or electro-surgery, X-ray and radium, or combinations of these are the most potent remedies available for the treatment of cancer; in fact these are the only remedies justified by experience.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Ringworm in Shoes

From my experience I believe the secret of a permanent cure for foot itch lies in sterilizing shoes and hose. Change the hose daily, and boil them. Have at least three pairs of shoes and rotate, and pour a little gasoline in each shoe and pour it out again after a minute, and let it dry out for two days. By following this plan I have been able to get rid of the trouble altogether where before I could never seem to prevent it from recurring. (R. W.)

Answer—Thank you. Good idea. Gasoline, by the way, is a good remedy for ringworm of feet. Soak affected region in plain gas (not ethyl) not more than one minute on three successive days.

Handicapped Tonsil Cases

Last summer I followed your good advice and had my tonsils removed by diathermy. My doctor had told me they were very bad and ought to come out but he would not advise the operation on account of my tuberculosis. I am very glad now that I did so. (Mrs. B. E. M.)

Answer—In most cases where removal of tonsils is necessary but unsafe on account of some serious complication, the diathermy method is quite satisfactory. The physician who fails to consider this alternative simply fails to give his patient competent medical advice. Any surgeon or throat specialist who declares today that the diathermy method is "no good" or "doesn't eradicate the infection" is simply displaying a mulish disposition. (Copyright John F. Dille Co.)

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

THE squirrel that made the cat jump round and tip the Tynites to the ground, clumped high chatter loud. It seemed to say, "You can't get me, 'cause I'm as quick as I can be." The cat looked so dumfounded, it amused the Tyn crowd.

Then Duncy shouted, "We will fix you for your funny little tricks. What did you dump us out for? Please come back here right away. Don't chase that squirrel. It's much too small. You are not being fair at all, unless you merely want to get it so you two can play."

The cat, however, felt ashamed. It knew that it was being blamed and, when it came down to the ground, it ran with all its might. Cried Scouty, "Hey! Don't leave us here. We'll shortly be all lost, I fear." And then he added, "Well, our cat has run right out of sight."

"Please tell me, what are we to do? Quick, now, can any one of you think up a way to move along. I'm much too tired to walk. And yet we can't sit here all day. We must be on our merry way. Think fast because 'twill do no good to just stand here and talk."

"I have a plan," we Duncy cried. "We can continue on our ride. If you are game to pull us over the ground a little while. I think that you are strong enough, although you'll likely pant and puff. Now listen, if you'll start the stunt, we'll change off every mile."

Brave Scouty thought a minute and then said, "Sure, I will lend a hand. Climb in and I will furnish power, at least the best I can." So they all climbed aboard once more and then, when Scouty heard them roar, "Giddyup!" he tugged with all his might and shortly off he ran. (Copyright, 1932, NEA Service, Inc.) ## Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York — Morton Downey, who skyrocketed to fame and fortune as a crooner, has been negotiating for a palatial home in Yonkers, fifth largest city in the state, just over the Bronx borough line.

Downey is said to make about $800,000 a year from engagements and royalties. Anyway, he makes enough to be able to talk turkey when $45,000 or so is asked for a colonial residence.

Yonkers is so close by that New Yorkers look upon it as a sort of sixth borough. That annoys some of the 135,000 Yonkersites, because their city (biggest Albany) has a strong community spirit.

There's quite a colony of resident celebrities, many of whom have a h i r business in Manhattan. They're plenty of arty folk up there, writers, actors and such, as well as bankers and big business men.

Samuel Untermyer's home, "Graystones," is there. Thomas Beer, author, inherited a house in Yonkers, and Joseph Urban, scenic designer, is another Yonkersite.

Downey would be no stranger in Yonkers. He lived there himself for several months a few years ago. Richard Bennett used to live in Yonkers, also and Downey married the actor's daughter, Barbara (Connie's and Joan's sister, you know).

To get to Yonkers all you have to do is ride the subway to the end of the line, then catch a surface car.

Champ Strap Hanger

John E. Andrus, a former mayor of Yonkers, retired with the title of world's champion strap hanger among the subway riders. He is a multi-millionaire, but when he went to and from business in New York he scorned any means of transportation other than the subway.

When Andrus got to be 85 years old, he suffered a leg injury in the subway jam at Brooklyn bridge station. After that his doctor insisted he do his regular commuting in an automobile, but Andrus continued to take occasional strap hanging excursions underground, "just to keep fit."

Come February 18, John E. Andrus will be celebrating his ninety-first birthday.

Persons who come to the metropolitan area from western and southern towns are apt to find residence in Yonkers to their liking. There is a booming spirit that inspires community pride in Yonkers' elevator and carpet industries, and a civic camaraderie sadly missed in the five boroughs of New York by any one who has been nourished by it.

Hot Air

With New York enjoying unseasonably warm January days, practically everything except the political situation was cited as the cause.

Pussywills showed green in the parks, hundreds of ducks returned to the Van Cortlandt park pond, tulips bloomed in penthouse gardens, polar bears eyed their brown brethren with envy in the Bronx zoo and hardy-guards-players ground out springtime tunes under the windows of Manhattan.

A motor car man tells me the principal thing supporting interest in the big automobile show was the sort of weather that makes a fellow want to hit the open road.

Women who bought those dun socks for southern wear could have worn them comfortably on Fifth avenue. But it seems they preferred to melt in furs while waiting for the train to Florida.

Today's Anniversary

VERNON CASTLE KILLED
On Feb. 15, 1918, Captain Vernon Castle, famous dancer and a newly trained flyer, was killed when his plane crashed near Fort Worth, Texas.

With his wife, the then Irene Castle, Captain Castle had been internationally famous for his dancing, and went into the air corps at the outbreak of the war.

President Wilson placed an embargo on all cargo space to insure transport of troops and war material.

American gunners aided French troops in a raid in the Champagne sector between Tahure and Butte de Mesnil.

Trotsky formally declared Russia's withdrawal from the war.

Now that Newton D. Baker has clarified his stand on the League of Nations he is boosted as a presidential candidate. Maybe Hoover ought to come out and say he isn't in favor of the depression.

SMITH'S SPLIT WITH ROOSEVELT STILL CLOUDED

Experts See Underground Struggle for Control of Party

Only in a limited sense has the "I am willing" statement of Alfred E. Smith uncovered to the light the true state of affairs between him and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The contention is about universal now that the Damon and Pythias years of political harmony between these two are ended. But neither the public nor the politicians know when or where or why the break occurred.

This is a prophetic circumstance. It will impart a unique note to any struggle for delegates which may now ensue.

The personalities and capabilities of the two men are sure to have most of the emphasis, with the usual clash over public issues conspicuously absent. So far as anyone knows, there is no important public problem on which the present and the former governor of New York do not agree.

This situation will deprive the battle of such spectacular features as those, for instance, which attended the pre-convention campaign in 1912 between Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard Taft. It is not expected that either of the present contestants, or his supporters, will start calling names or making any sort of frontal attack.

Underground Fight
It will be, in large measure, an underground struggle for mastery. The bombs bursting in air activities may seem to lag, but down below the engineers of both commands will be busy enough with their mining operations.

Whatever its effect on political history, Smith's statement must be classed as a notable contribution to political literature.

Into a mere 144 words he packed a whole volume of meaning for the democratic party, complete with preface, historical citations, and conclusions, plus plenty of paratextual explanatory matter for those who read between the lines. Two or three pungent phrases deserve to rank as classics of condensation.

He made his willingness to run conditional on a decision by the convention "after careful consideration." Could a forecast of a deadlock be more crisply expressed?

Surely no one ever phrased in seven words so much of aspiration, of confidence, and of outright warning as did the happy warrior when he said: "I am the leader of the party."

Problem For Garner
Speaker John Garner of the house probably had more immediate cause for fidgeting over the Smith pronouncement than anyone else. He began to hear many predictions that he would be the nominee after Smith and Roosevelt had stopped each other.

Now most of these forecasts came from Smith men, whereas the Roosevelt people have been counting Garner a Roosevelt man.

Furthermore, Garner has been on the point of retiring to private life several times in recent years, and he has no hankering for new duties.

The many published stories about the speaker's simple tastes are entirely accurate. He likes boon companions about him, detests boiled shirts, and chafes under every curtailment of his comfort and his privacy.

As speaker, he has behind him the narrowest of majorities, which might or might not hand together if he cast over his administration that inevitable suspicion of personal motive which attaches to the acts of all presidential candidates.

He Says Nothing
For all these reasons, he will find himself facing a hard decision

if the anti-Roosevelt leaders persist in offering him support.

When his neighbors at Uvalde, Tex., endorsed him for president some weeks ago, Garner laughed that anyone should think of such a thing.

"They've gone plumb crazy down there," he said.

Now he is saying nothing at all. He has the appearance of a man who hopes devoutly he won't have to say anything. Yet how can he help listening?

BY CHARLES F. SPURGE
Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press, Wall Street, New York.—(C.P.A.)—It there is any virtue in the chart reading of stocks and if the trends shown in them accurately forecast market movements, a great deal of information may be found in what they have recently revealed.

For the first time during the decline in stocks, which has now covered nearly two and one-half years, average prices have on three different occasions gone to a certain point and stopped there. At the closing of the market on Wednesday the averages were approximately those of the low point on Jan. 5 and Dec. 17. Three times, therefore, resistance has been developed in the same price territory. Speaking technically, a "triple bottom" had been established.

Chartists make a great deal of the creation of a "double bottom" believing that, if the market goes a second time to the former low point and stops there, it is an indication that liquidation has been suspended and that the buying is superior in quality to the selling. When the market improves on this accomplishment, and for the third time stands up, it is self-evident to them that a definite turn in the speculative trend has arrived.

Believe Bottom Reached
On this assumption those who place great confidence in all sorts of graphs are today convinced that the bottom of the depression, as it is reflected in the prices of stocks, has been reached. They also make considerable capital of the fact that

Thursday's average advance in the industrials exceeded by nearly 2 points that of the first rally from the Jan. 5 low and approximated the amount of average gain that took place on the day following the low market prices of Dec. 17.

Another important contribution to the argument of the chartists that liquidation has petered out is the reduced volume of offerings of securities. Preceding the last approach for the averages of their former low level. On other occasions offerings have increased as the market has approached its former low with a large amount of new liquidation developing as the signs of additional liquidation expanded. This is evidence that recessionary liquidation has about run its course, with most of the "weak situations" cleared up and the small investor no longer willing to sacrifice his holdings at the going prices. The influence of the new banking legislation on the mental attitude of bankers who have been selling securities and who, according to the secretary of the treasury sold $300,000,000 of bonds in the last few months, should be decidedly helpful. It proves to be true that the market has finally reached a definite point of resistance and the "triple bottom" bears out the conclusions of the chartists that a permanent change in the direction of prices is at hand. It will mean that one of the longest and most violent downward deflationary movements in history is terminating. From the high level of Sept. 3, 1929, the average decline in industrial stocks amounted to 300 points, or 50 per cent, and that of railroad stocks to 150 points, or about 54 per cent. In the same period the average of public utilities

why Chesterfields are Better!

Just think what this means for Chesterfield smokers. It means that the larger part of 90 million dollars is invested in Domestic and Turkish tobaccos that are being properly aged in Nature's way, and cured so as to make them sweeter and milder.

CHESTERFIELD tobacco is packed in wooden casks, each containing about 1,000 pounds and stored for two years in modern, up-to-date warehouses.

These warehouses, if placed end-to-end, would be about four miles in length. From floor to ceiling they are filled with these casks of fine tobacco, ageing in Nature's slow but sure way. It takes a lot of money to make a good cigarette—money to buy good tobaccos and money to age them properly.

CHESTERFIELDS are milder, and taste better . . . there's a 90 million dollar reason why! Just try them!

CHURCH CHOIRS IN PROGRAM AT VESPER SERVICE

With artistic antiphonal singing, the combined choirs of the Methodist church gave an effective presentation of Gounod's "Messe Solenne" at the seventh vesper program of the year at the church Sunday afternoon. Dean Carl J. Waterman directed the performance and Cyrus Daniel was at the organ. Soloists were Marian Waterman, soprano, Carl Nicholas, tenor, and Marshall Hulbert, baritone.

Of the six parts of the mass, the most outstanding was the Kyrie, which offered wide opportunity for shading, contrast, and volume. The soloists sang from the choir loft, and the choirs from the balcony, creating unusual antiphonal effects. Other especially well-done parts were Gloria in Excelsis and Sanctus.

By request the principal sections of the mass will be presented at the morning service next Sunday. A special ritual will be written to augment the music.

DAILY HABITS OF EXERCISE ARE HELPFUL

BY ALICIA HART
Exercising is a little bit like saving money. It is not the amount accomplished at a given time that counts, but that day-by-day habit that accumulates something worth while.

I know a woman almost 70 who is as limber as most women of 30. She can stoop, bend, walk, dance with never a creak to indicate the brittleness that sometimes comes with age.

For over 40 years, this woman told me, she has done 15 minutes of exercise both morning and night. Just 20 minutes a day but she claims never to have missed a single day, except the few times she was flat on her back with illness, and those have been fewer in her life than the average.

She has always centered all her attention during exercising on her through-the-ribs area of her body. She stretches, bends, sways, shakes each leg a few times and draws herself up out of her hips by various exercises. The limberness of her spine testifies to the efficacy of her regime. But her daily application mustn't be overlooked.

Hug each knee to your chest about ten times, always with the toes of the foot pointed down. (Copyright, 1932, NEA Service, Inc.)

The Judson Mission will have charge of the missionary program.

Luther League of Trinity English Lutheran church will meet at 7:30 Wednesday evening instead of Tuesday in the sub auditorium of the church. A business and devotional meeting will take place.

Every Child Acquires Its Own Powers

BY ANGELO PATRI
David was a troublesome child in school. He would do all sorts of little nagging things to upset the quiet order of the classroom. Then he would whine and say, "He made me do it." That brought on a long argument and the time was wasted. The teacher sent for David's mother.

"Yes, I know. David isn't to blame. He is a good boy. The other boys make him bad."

"Now don't believe that. David does not do his work. He is behind his grade. He hasn't anything to do and looks for something. The right boy never has to be told what to do and he does it. I am not saying he is not bright and we will have to do something to help him get along better."

"My David not bright? He is the smartest child. He knows everything you tell him. He wants to be friends with all the boys as he does the bad things they tell him. If you will make the bad boys behave, David will be all right."

David is not the only one who thinks that if he could live in the world by himself he could get along very well. It is the other fellow who makes the trouble. If he were out of the way, if there were no body to interfere, how easy it would be to go to work hard and succeed. Unfortunately, David will have to adjust himself to getting along with some millions or so of people and sooner he does it the better. Putting the blame on the fellow who told him to do it isn't going to help in the least.

Each child is accountable for himself. His powers are his own, such as he has. Nobody can move his legs and arms or put words on his tongue. He does that for himself. The poorest of us has that much power. David lends himself to anyone who will take the trouble to use him. He does it willingly, gladly, to avoid doing something that is too hard for him.

Such children as David are empty vessels lying about waiting for somebody to come along and fill them. And they always do. The trouble about this is that the used vessels are not being used to their own advantage. They are used for another's end, without profit to themselves.

The point to remember in all this is that no child need lend himself to another. If he didn't ask for service he wouldn't get it. Because he is idle, having no work of his own, no ideas of his own to work on, he is at the unoccupied ones will use him.

Instead of defending such children and blaming those who use them, try to give them work they can do, interests that are their own. Once they are about their own business nobody can touch them. It may be necessary to change the grade, to give the child a different course, to recondition him generally. It will be worth all the trouble if you can help him to become a self-directing individual. The Davids of the school and of the world are pitiful indeed. All we can do to help them is none too much.

Dr. Garretson found her smoking cigars "with evidence of real enjoyment" when he first attended her. But Mrs. Wood has a cardiac heart, and she's being very strict with her about those little black stogies.

WEALTHY RECLUSE CHOOSES TO LIVE IN HER OWN WAY

Mrs. Ida E. Wood, 93, is Alone With Her Memories —and $750,000

NEA Service Writer
BY PAUL HARRISON
New York—The twilight of life is taking on a pleasant glow for Mrs. Ida E. Wood, the 93-year-old eccentric who last October was found living alone with her memories —and $750,000 in cash.

The unpleasantness of the days when she was declared incompetent and placed in the guardianship of a nephew is being dispelled by kindness and care. A new routine is displacing her quarter-century-old habits of defiant isolation. Friends are attempting the gradual translation of her dimmed mind from a story-book of lavender and old lace to the twentieth century.

Mrs. Wood is beginning to realize that her fortune is intact and safe, that she can have anything she wants (except too many cigars), and that no one wishes her harm. She is becoming reconciled to the presence of the brisk nurses and the visits of Dr. William V. P. Garretson. Although she still doesn't like to play at unfamiliar visitors, it may be that she secretly enjoys being the center of so much attention.

For Ida Wood was a great belle in her day, and she has lost little of her imperious manner. But she still lives almost wholly in the past. She never has seen a movie, heard a radio, or ridden in an automobile.

But she well remembers her social triumphs of the '60s and '70s — the parties she gave, the presidential inaugural balls, the time she danced with Edward VII when he was the Prince of Wales.

Before her husband, Benjamin Wood, died in 1900 she had become a rich woman. But she was terror-stricken by the panic of 1907, liquidated everything she owned, and went into voluntary exile.

Seclusion Broken
Last autumn she was discovered in two amazingly littered rooms in the old Herald Square Hotel. Otis Wood, her nephew, was made her guardian. Three-quarters of a million dollars in large bills were found on her person. Almost a peck of jewels were appraised at hundreds of thousands. A $100,000 gold certificate was found under the bath tub. Forty trunks revealed scores of gowns (with 14-inch waists) which were museum pieces, heirloom lace, love letters, mementoes, daguerotypes, 500 yards of twine and about a barrel of soap collected from hotels in many cities.

She had saved everything, spent almost nothing, since adopting her life of seclusion. Her own great haunting fear was poverty. She had lived on canned beans, boiled eggs and tea—prepared by herself over a gas plate in her apartment.

Mrs. Wood resented to the point of violence the intrusion of doctors and lawyers. "All I want," she said, "is to be left alone."

So far as was consistent with her physical welfare, her wish was satisfied. But now she is learning anew the pleasure of companionship. She does not understand that contemporary celebrities of her youth are dead, and wonders why more of her old friends don't drop in for visits. She talks sometimes of driving up Fifth Avenue again in her carriage. Dr. Garretson has promised that she may, if her health continues to improve.

Shampoos, Manicures
A weekly shampoo and daily manicures are her special delight. Since night and day are one to her nearly blind old eyes, she often sits at a dressing table until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning, arranging her wispy coiffure in preparation for an imaginary ball. Sometimes she calls for a favorite gown — remembering perfectly in which trunk it will be found — and attempts to sew on it, holding the material a couple of inches from her eyes.

All her mental faculties have improved under proper diet and care," said Otis Wood. "Even her sight and hearing are noticeably better. She walks without a cane, and although we haven't been able to get her on a scale, we are sure she is gaining in weight."

"But she is still like a willful child, and sometimes has tantrums. We try to avoid all mention of money, but even that a nurse puts a tray of food before her she demands to know how much it cost. At first, if the amount was more than a dollar, she refused to eat, so the doctor instructed the nurse always to name a low figure."

"But my aunt was canny. Now she demands to see the food receipts, so the nurse has to put cashiers' slips on the nurse puts a tray of food before her she demands to know how much it cost. At first, if the amount was more than a dollar, she refused to eat, so the doctor instructed the nurse always to name a low figure."

—Beside her plate—
She still cherishes a little gray bag, made for her by her mother, in which she kept $400,000 in cash until the courts intervened and placed that and another $350,000 in a bank. The bag now contains a much thumbed bank book, to which she

By PEGGY POST

SLIPPING back to those entrancing days of crinolines and bows, PEGGY POST-BONNE have established a colonial department on second floor... it's quite like stepping into the picture of a minuet and actually feeling 1732 instead of modern! Authentic costumes, sponsored by the national bi-centennial committee in Washington, will be found here in gay cottons for women, befitting adorable prints for Colonial-minded Misses and knee breeched, white stockinged suits for laddies. Martha Washington gowns with the crinoline bustle in printed overdrapes, laced bodice and crossed surplice collar complete the scene. Father George's oil painting centers the place with colonial lamps and gadgets all about. Don't miss being historical.

By the way, the book shop here has Bernard Fay's celebrated biography of the Republican aristocrat... there is none better on the father of this country.

YOU CAN wave those flags for the HOBBY HOUSE where you'll find the cleverest Washington tales ever so playfully edged in red, white and blue. Adorable for a party or just a casual foursome, these tallies with Martha and George's famed silhouette on the cover. If you're the sort of hostess who does things well, you won't miss the wee colored miniatures of the first lady and father of the land for exceptional prizes.

THIS spirit of independence has certainly crept into the hats this season if one believes all one sees at the VOGUE HAT SHOP! A crinolin bit of tuckered actually flaunts its coquetry... crystal unian in black is a new straw that gets its name from the glittery bead appearance to the straw... celomast is the lovely lusterless stuff so elegant in browns. Feathers perk up or down or over the brow without any law of direction and brims have a flirtatious look about their droop.

THE LITTLE hat that cut down the old cherry tree will have a modern appearance to it at GALPIN'S HARDWARE STORE and there'll be lots of other gadgets that were unknown in the old days. Save hammers, screw drivers, in fact all those handy tools that husbands use around the house are found at this store at the best quality and price. What I'm trying to say by degrees is that Galpin's is a high class hardware store with everything from nails to Nile green paint.

Do You know when Washington was born? Can you say 1732 just as if you were telling off a cherry log... someone couldn't and called the office to ask how old the gentleman is supposed to be. The answer is 200. I looked it up.

Exactly two hundred years ago to the minute at the crack of dawn next Monday morning, Mrs. Washington's clever little boy saw the light of the world... it's a good thing because we may never have heard the original American folk tale about the cherry tree or been able to have a country's father or begin the bi-centennial fire-cracking next week for the rest of the year!

THE STARS and stripes may be lacking but the "long may it wave" part is surely appropriate for EL- LYN'S beauty shop above Voigt's drug store. And now's the time to get a permanent because it won't be many more weeks before we'll be getting ready for Easter. Telephone 411 for appointments.

IF YOU hitch your wagon to a fashion star make HERNER'S HOSIERY SHOP your first stop for it's there you'll find the rage of the spring and summer. Darling sweaters with a crocheted look about them that are being worn on the beach with pajamas... with contrasting skirts for sport for daytime. The skirt and sweater mood is on us... and they're so grand to wear... they're tight waisted and short sleeved sweaters in glowing or pastel shades... woolen skirts with a tailored fit... Sweaters $1.95 and $2.95. Skirts $2.95.

Even hats are acclaiming the red, white and blue policy of patriotism... you'll find perky blue numbers with red feathers and even a touch of white. This is what I call letting patriotism go to your head... unless you find the color combination interesting... as it sometimes is.

"APPLETON PURE MILK," cried the young lady in the blue pinafore when teacher asked what made George Washington famous... because the young lady had heard Father say at the breakfast table that very morning that a quart of milk every day is the only way to grow big and strong. It happened that father was right since it was the milkman from the Appleton Pure Milk Co. that left the shining white bottles of fresh and healthful milk at their family door every morning.

THREE patriotic cheers for the TREASURE BOX GIFT SHOP that is filled to the brim with pastime ideas! Not only the clever little jig saw puzzles that will make you knit your American brow but there's a new game that calls for pencil, at least two pencils and a brain fast. It's called Gugenheim, and more fun than a barrel of monkeys... in a set of four games for one dollar... and based on letters to which you supply your thought and make words... and clever words too!

the STORY OF SUE

By Margery Hale

LIKE a frightened gypsy Ruth went on the stage. She drew back a little. She advanced slowly. Not because she wanted to, because her legs refused to gather any speed. She knew dimly that the orchestra leader had slowed up. He was making his music suit her actions. Nice of him, she supposed. But he needn't do that. If she failed now, she failed forever. This was so much more than just a featured act on a vaudeville bill. It was her declaration of independence. She had to succeed.

And suddenly she forgot everything. She threw herself into the swing of the music. Now it was coming faster and faster and faster. She was thinking of her injustices and because she was she could go barbaic. She knew that the theater was very quiet. And the music was lifting now, like a brook that danced through a dusky forest. And in the lure of the music she was lonely. Lost. Frightened. When the dance ended she was spent and white.

She left the stage as the applause came. She heard it echoing from behind scenes.

"Go back! Bow! You put it over!" Dale Courtney was telling her.

"I can't!" Her voice was just a whisper.

"Of course you can." He took her arm and pulled her to the entrance. She went on, smiled, bowed, and bowed again.

Then she came back to be pushed out the third time.

After that she ran to her dressing room.

"You knocked them for a goal. You're grand," Courtney told her, following her. "Everyone is going to want to know who you are and where you came from."

"But you won't tell them!" she pleaded.

"You can bet your independence I won't. The mystery gag is as old as the first apple orchard, but it still works. Gets 'em every time. I'm glad you wouldn't go on as yourself."

Ruth's color had come back. Her eyes were shining. Her hair was tumbled. She dressed quickly after Courtney had gone. She put on the dress and hat that she had bought a few days before for the dinner engagement with Sue and Jack and Hal Pritchard. She had forgotten about Pritchard. Now she wondered if he had left town and if he had seen Sally again.

She went downstairs and she found everything much more deserted back stage. The feature was on. The people who had finished their acts were through for the night. She was glad that she was only dancing once tonight. The rest of the week she had to appear twice. With both

For afternoons, when you want young daughter to look as darling as possible, here's a lovely French model.

It can be carried out in several evening shows. She had pleaded until Courtney had let her have just one audience to face on the first night.

She slipped into a seat near the back of the theater but her eyes didn't watch the drama on the screen. She was thinking about herself.

"Who was the girl in that dance?" she heard someone ask. "I'd like to know her."

"She's got something that makes her stand out. Funny we've never heard of her," the voice of a man answered. "Let's find her."

"Can't," the first voice, also masculine, replied. "Not until this picture is over. Then Courtney will tell if we coax hard enough. Anyway, we can follow her."

Ruth suddenly changed her seat.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vase

A TRIAL SEPARATION OFTEN EFFECTIVE—BUT MUST BE REAL SEPARATION

Dear Virginia Vase: I am very much in love with my husband and he apparently loves me, but recently he told me that he didn't love me as much as he used to, and this worries me. He swears that there is no one else in his life, and that he is more fond of me than of any one else in the world. But the kick has gone out of our relationship for him and he believes that it will never come back if we go on living together. He suggests a trial separation for three or four months during which time we will see each other constantly and remain on the friendliest terms. He will go to live with a friend and I will remain in our home. The thought breaks my heart. He says he will want to see me four or five times a week and he believes that we will regain our former relationship. Please tell me what you think I ought to do.

GERTRUDE J.

A trial separation isn't a bad idea at all. Other young couples have tried something of the sort when love seemed to be flying out of the window in a great hurry—and have discovered that they couldn't really live without each other nearly as well as they imagined.

But a separation must be real. It must be the actual fact—not seeing each other at all. Your husband's proposition sounds attractive in a nice romantic impractical sort of way. But what actual good does it accomplish. You go on as good friends, as close companions, and he won't have any chance to tell what his real attitude toward you is.

He needs a complete change. He needs to worry a little—to wonder what you're doing. He mustn't be in constant touch with you. Otherwise you're in danger of becoming just another girl friend of his—the good old standby who can be depended on for a date three or four times a week.

There's no point in that sort of procedure. You've got to give him a definite rest. Let him know what it is to be without you. Let him realize that he needs you and loves you more than anyone else. He won't arrive at that conclusion if he's permitted to see you whenever he wants, and to enjoy absolute freedom in the meantime.

In other words he's dodging matrimonial routine and occasional boredom and accustoming himself to a nice bachelor existence with a pleasant wife whom he may see when his fancy inclines him in her direction.

Of course you want him back and because you're so much in love you're probably anxious to see him whenever he suggests it, but don't you understand you can work no permanent good by seizing the brief chance of happiness his occasional visits hold out. Work for a real happiness and insist that this separation be a definite one until he has made up his mind whether he loves you enough to go on.

In the meantime try not to sit home moping and waiting for him to come back. Show him that you're a personality—that you're independent, and that you're capable of building up a life of your own. You undoubtedly have friends—and you'll be surprised how they'll rally around to help you.

Take yourself out during the daytime as much as possible and accept all invitations offered in the evening. People who know you and like you will appreciate your position and will make a point of having you around when an extra gal is needed.

Just keep yourself on your own feet for a while so that when your husband does come back—and the chances are that he will—he'll find a more striking personality than the little girl he left behind him. Let him find out how necessary it is to hold your love and he won't be so careless about arranging for trial separations again.

A FALSE CHARGE

WIFE: Did you find out what I said that offended Mrs. Smith?

HUSBAND: Yes, her husband told me. It seems that you remarked, "I see you're installed in your new home," and as they furnished on the installment system, she thought you were trying to be funny at their expense."—Trib.

THE MASTER TOUCH

loss by this selection of an Opening lead. When the Dummy went down, it was apparent to Mr. von Zedwitz that his hope of making the hand depended on an end play. He could not take two rounds of spades and count on ruffing the third spade, because to do so would permit a second lead of hearts and thus the inevitable defeat of the contract. Mr. von Zedwitz then won the first trick with the King of hearts in his own hand, led the singleton King of clubs, drew the adverse trumps and discarded a spade on the Ace of clubs. He ruffed two losing clubs and on the eleventh trick was left in his own hand with the Queen and four of spades and the four of hearts. In the Dummy were the deuce of hearts and the Ace and seven of spades. Mr. von Zedwitz led the four of hearts and forced Mr. Jacoby into the lead. Mr. Jacoby, who held at that time the King and eight of spades and nine of hearts, was compelled to take the trick and lead a spade, which the Baron permitted to run to his Queen and won the last trick with the Ace of spades, thus making

Mr. Waldemar von Zedwitz, who before he became an American citizen was entitled to the distinction of being addressed as "Baron," is a great Contract player. He is among the four or five best players in the entire world. Hence, I was extremely fortunate to get him to act as my partner in one session, just before he left for a cruise in tropical waters, in my match with Mr. Sidney S. Lenz.

The last hand of the last rubber he played gave to him an opportunity for brilliant play in the making of a Slam which we bid upon the hand below:

The Bidding:

East South West North

1♣ Pass 2♥ Pass

4♥ Pass 6♣ Pass

Mr. Jacoby made a very brilliant Opening, the Ten of hearts. In the bidding I had made a Forcing Take-out in hearts and my partner had raised that bid to game and Mr. Jacoby reasoned that Mr. Lenz could not hold more than a singleton in the heart suit and possibly was void of it. There was, therefore, everything to gain and nothing to ing all the tricks, except the eleventh, for a vulnerable Small Slam.

TODAY'S POINTER

Unless you are able to play a doubtful Slam in a masterful manner, you are wiser not to bid it. Some Slam contracts require a master touch to make them.

CORONER'S JURY MEETS THIS WEEK

Verdict Expected in Recent Sudden Death of Arthur Blaney

Menasha — The coroner's jury in the death of Arthur Blaney, a Menasha man who died suddenly here Jan. 6, will meet at the Menasha police station Thursday afternoon, according to Martin Potratz, Winnebago co coroner. No witnesses will be questioned, an open verdict will be signed and the jury will be dismissed, Potratz stated.

An autopsy was made following Blaney's death at which physicians decided that death was due to a basal hemorrhage, probably caused by a blow received in an automobile accident in which Blaney was involved late in December. A report on the contents and condition of the vital organs, received today from Madison, contained no indication of other factors which may have caused death, Potratz has revealed.

Blaney, a railroad employee, returned to his home on the evening of Jan. 5, complained of a severe headache, received medical attention, and died early the following morning.

AMATEUR ROBBER WONDERS HOW HE GOT TO HOSPITAL

Chicago — (AP) — Ernest Jones, 25, and a companion, the police say, decided to go into the robbery business.

One of the first persons they called upon, as the police tell the story, was Mr. Roger Eastman, oil station attendant.

It was not long afterward that Jones woke up in a hospital, burning with curiosity.

"How," he inquired, "did I get here?"

"You should ask," said one of the policemen who took him to the hospital.

"You were careless with your pistol and so Mr. Eastman grabbed a shovel and hit you over the head with it. Then he took your pistol and shot four times at your friend who got away."

"You will notice also, if you look carefully, that you have been scalded. That was because Mr. Eastman, in a hurry to slug you with his shovel, kicked over a bucket of hot water and you fell in it."

SONNENBERG DRUGS LOSE TO OSHKOSH

Menasha Quint Drops 30 to 25 Verdict in Badger State Game

Menasha — The Sonnenberg Drugs of Menasha bowed to the Oshkosh Gales, 30 to 25, in a Badger state league contest at S. A. Cook armory here Sunday afternoon. In spite of the loss the Menasha cagers remain in second place in league standings with three wins and three losses.

C. Seibold of Oshkosh took high scoring honors with six field goals and two free throws for a total of 14 points while Godhardt led the Menasha offense with five baskets.

A total of 20 fouls were called, 12 on the Menasha team and eight on Gales. Godhardt, Menasha ace, was forced to leave the game after committing his fourth misdeed in the third quarter.

Opening with a fast moving attack the Menasha squad piled up an 11 to 7 lead at the close of the first quarter but was trailing on the short end of an 18 to 15 count at the half and was unable to overcome the Oshkosh advantage during the remainder of the game.

Godard worked at center for Menasha with Vetter, Keefe, Hoffman, and Green at forwards and Asmus, Fenske, Smith, and Adams at guards. A conference battle with the New London entry is scheduled for Friday evening at New London.

Movie-Mad French Girl Fades In Paris Hospital

BY MINOTT SAUNDERS
Paris—The vivid life's drama of Rachel Mery, 25-year-old movie-mad daughter of a Paris merchant, is believed to be fading out sadly in a hospital for advanced cases of tuberculosis, after her conviction of manslaughter for the murder of her hero, Fernand Heurteur, orchestra leader and song writer. She was given a suspended sentence of two years.

This beautiful little blond girl worshipped at a crepe-draped altar of Rudolph Valentino which she set up over her bed after his death.

Being near-sighted, Rachel used to take a front seat, and in one of her favorite theaters she met Heurteur, over 20 years her senior, handsome and successful violinist. She fell desperately in love with him. Although he was not quite a movie star, he was associated with the business and this satisfied her ambition at the time. She discovered that he was living with another woman, whom he had known for six years.

A year ago last November Rachel took her father's revolver and went to call on the other woman. When she rang the bell the door was opened by Heurteur himself. He quitted her and took her for a ride in his car. As he was driving down the Avenue de l'Opera, in the thick of early-evening traffic, she made a gesture as though she was going to put her arm around him, but shot him in the back of the neck, killing him instantly. The car zig-zagged and crashed into a post on the pavement. Rachel stepped out quite calmly and with a fine theatrical air told the police:

"My lover wanted to leave me. I have killed him. It had to be one or the other of us."

Investigation into Rachel's life showed that she had always been capricious and given to fantastic notions. Although very attractive, she had always been rather sickly and her loving parents were inclined to be lenient with her.

Subsequent events have shown that Rachel's role was a tragic one. Her father, who was able to provide well for her, was overcome with grief and died two months after she was arrested. Her first lawyer, a friend of the family, who took her case out of sympathetic interest, died suddenly a short time later. A second lawyer was taken seriously ill and unable to continue with the case. When Rachel was in prison it was discovered that she was suffering from tuberculosis of both lung and bone. She spent most of her time awaiting trial in the hospital ward.

But when Rachel was brought in to court, tenderly escorted by three wardens, she conducted herself as though her part had been studied and the trial was charged with dramatic pathos. She was beautiful still, with her white face carefully made up and her blond hair neatly arranged. There was little doubt that she would be set free. Medical evidence showed that her condition was extremely serious, and she answered questions in shy, subdued tones, saying that her lover had promised to marry her and that she only meant to frighten him.

"American films, which invariably and with prolonged hisses on the mouth, gave this little girl her first lessons," remarked her lawyer.

"It only means going from one prison to another," said Rachel when she was liberated. The medical examiner had explained to the court that her only chance of life was to lie with her spinal column in a plaster cast for two or three years.

WOULD PREVENT UTILITY SALE OF APPLIANCES

Although Agitation Is Increased, Little Progress Is Being Made

BY GEORGE E. DOYING
Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press
Washington —(CPA)— Although the agitation against sales of appliances by public utilities has by no means ceased, it appears to be making little if any headway and has just been given a setback by the report adopted by the New York Public service commission holding that the practice is justified on the ground that "it is a necessary function in order to provide adequate service to the public at reasonable rates."

The experience in Kansas and Oklahoma, the two states which a year ago enacted laws prohibiting public utilities from engaging in the merchandising business, apparently has not been such as to encourage other states to take similar action. It has been reported that total sales of appliances in the two states have dropped off about $4,000,000 and that the principal beneficiaries have been the mail order houses and chain stores instead of the independent merchants who were supposed to be benefited by the legislation.

Bills Introduced
In only two of the eight state legislatures in session have anti-merchandising bills been introduced this year. They are Massachusetts and Mississippi, and there is no indication as yet that the measures stand any chance of passing. A similar effort was made in about a dozen states in 1931.

A special power rate investigating committee created by the South Carolina legislature last year recently made an exhaustive report on the electric utilities of that state and recommended merely that the companies be required to keep separate accounts of their merchandising business. A similar recommendation was made by the New York commission, which has just completed a thorough investigation of the subject of appliance sales by utilities. "In my opinion," says the opinion, which was written by Chairman Milo R. Matthei, "the record herein provides no basis for an order of the commission prohibiting merchandising. It is desirable, however, that utilities should engage in merchandising only when it is necessary in order to provide for the introduction of appliances upon reasonable terms and to supplement what private agencies are doing."

Discusses Authority
The report discusses at length the question of the legal authority of utility companies to engage in the merchandising business and finds that the right of electric corporations and of gas and electric corporations to deal in electric appliances is not open to question, although some doubt exists as to the rights of gas corporations. It was held, however, that both classes of utility have a right to deal in appliances when the business is reasonably carried on to promote the use of gas or electricity.

Sales by chain stores dealing chiefly in gas and electric household appliances amount annually to about $191,500,000, according to a recent report by the department of commerce. The 262 chains in the field operate 4,472 retail establishments and employ more than 29,000 persons, who receive more than $35,000,000 a year in salaries and wages. Public utilities operate 219 of these chains and reported sales of $141,701,699, or about 74 per cent of the total sales of all house-hold-appliance chains.

New York—Tallest diplomat in the world is Sir Miles W. Lampson, British minister to China, just now arriving in Shanghai. Exposed to errant bombs and bullets, he stands six feet, four. He is the son of a Vermont Yankee, who went to England from Newhaven, Vt., made a fortune in helping to lay the Atlantic cable and became a baronet. Sir Miles was educated at Eton and entered the foreign service in 1903. He served at far eastern embassies and speaks Chinese fluently. He holds the Japanese order of the rising sun, third class, and the Chinese order of the Sacred Treasure, third class. Both sides like him. He says all talk of "British imperialism" in the far east is "moonshine." He is a nimble dancer but has a hard time finding partners.

On Jan. 9, 1932, they were dancing the "Turkey Trot" at the Homicidal Arbor dance hall, Fifty-second and Seventh-ave., New York. Somebody cut in on Owny Madden's girl. A narrowing circle of dancers, never missing a step, closed in on the 19-year-old west side gun boy. "Those guys won't start nothin'," yelled Owny. "Give me a gat and I'll start it." The dance rhythm was ticked into double time by a tattoo of gun shots. They carried Owny out, weighing several pounds more than when he went in. He got well and in 1931 went to Sing-Sing for supervising the killing of "Little Patsy" Doyle, gang rival in a mid-town saloon. In 1923, he was out and soon thereafter in trouble for booze snatching and this and that. His Darktown Cotton club, the Club Abbey and his other blaring night spots were frequently in trouble with the police. He prospered and became rich, without anybody really bothering him, but today he's headed back to Sing-Sing after long-drawn out inquiries by the parole board.

He doesn't look like a gangster, except to a searching profile view. From this slant Lombroso would chase him with a butterfly net. He has had considerable girl trouble. Frieda Horner, pretty little street waltz was his Delilah in the Patsy Doyle case. He led the gophers, who have since passed with the turkey trot and the leg-of-mutton sleeves.

The build-up for St. Valentine's still going, started with some playful ballot box stuffing in the third century. He was a venerated Roman priest who wanted to be bishop. The February festival of the Lupercalia celebrated Pan and Juno. Roman youths tossed into a great urn in the Spagna poetic inscriptions to their best girls. Valentinus was running for bishop on the gnostic ticket. Beautiful damsels, emptying the urn, found apostrophes to Valentinus swamping all the tender sentiments the boys had left. Annually the battle was renewed.

Valentine became bishop, was martyred and canonized. Chaucer and Shakespeare speak of him. Penys writes in his diary: "I am this year my wife's Valentine and it will cost me five pounds."

General Umberto Nobile's hair turned white. And he became an emaciated old man, after the loss of the dirigible Italia, on her north pole flight. Eight of the crew and six rescuers, including Roald Amundsen, were lost. His country sent him to Coventry and he resigned from the army, but today he grasps new hope. The soviet government

NO CHANCE THAT U. S. WILL DROP GOLD STANDARD

Just Inventing Trouble to Think of This Step Says Expert

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
(Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press)
New York — With so many real troubles to worry about it would hardly seem necessary to invent any but that is just what a good many of us are doing when we discuss the chances of the United States "going off" the gold standard. As a matter of fact, to treat this phobia seriously, there is nothing more improbable in the whole field of finance than that this country should suspend gold payments. Two good reasons for this statement are, first, that we don't have to and, second, that we don't want to. In no other country in the whole world is the maintenance of the gold standard so well assured as in the U. S. A. and no other country in the whole world has less to gain and more to lose by voluntarily abandoning that standard.

It is easy to understand, however, the widespread impression that action of that kind is possible if not probable. The decision of Great Britain last September was a shock to confidence from which we have not yet recovered, and when so many other European countries followed the British lead it was but natural that there should be questioning of our own position.

Then foreign speculators fostered the idea that the dollar was in danger for purposes of their own, with the result that the autumn of 1931 saw the largest gold exports for a similar period in our history. But all demands were met and should there be a recurrence of them all will be met without the slightest danger to a continuance of gold payments to all entitled to receive them.

The point to remember is that Great Britain was compelled to take the course she did to protect depleted gold reserves but that the United States has still the largest stock of monetary gold of any nation bar none. The latest figures on the total monetary gold stock of this country show holdings of $4,500,000 or slightly less than 40 per cent of the estimated world supply.

As to the expediency of suspending gold payments the only possible argument in its favor is that commodity prices would be advanced thereby. That gain, however, would be illusory in that it was achieved by depreciating the measure of value. You won't make a short man taller by cutting the number of inches in the foot from 12 to 10. The disadvantages would be numerous and weighty. It is sufficient to name one. When the rest of the world is your debtor what benefit is it to you to depreciate the medium in which payment must be made?

commissions him to build a series of dirigibles in Russia. Shunned and lonely, in his little apartment in the Prati, with his dog Titini, Noble has written for the world his own explanation, but Italy has not allowed its publication. The American sculptor, Henrik Christian Andersen, a resident of Rome for 20 years, has befriended him, but he has had few other friends.

OBSERVE TENTH ANNIVERSARY OF CHURCH IN CITY

Special Services Conducted for Emanuel Lutheran Congregation

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London — Impressive services marked the tenth anniversary of the dedication of Emanuel Lutheran church Sunday, English services, at which the Rev. R. Ziesemer, pastor, presided, were held at 9:30, and the German services in the afternoon the sermon was given by the Rev. Kurt Timmel, former assistant pastor here, and now of North Fond du Lac. The church orchestra, under the direction of O. J. Hoh, played, and at both the morning and afternoon services the church choir sang special selections, directed by Bernard Boese.

The Rev. Ziesemer used for his text the 26th psalm to bring out the quotation, "I have loved the habitations of thy house and the place where thy honor dwelleth." The speaker said that though humans have built the church, the Lord alone can hallow it, and his continual observation is upon the church in all their works, and that his heart is with the church and its people.

Using for his text the text from First Kings, 9:3, the Rev. Kurt Timmel used the answer of the Lord to Solomon's prayer in which the words occur: "I have heard thy prayer and supplication. I have hallowed this house that thou hast built." Mr. Timmel spoke of the changes which have taken place since the church was completed 10 years ago, and spoke with admiration of the work of the aged pastor of the church, Rev. Adolph Spiering, whose work accomplished much, and to those others, nearly 100 of whom are missing since the church was completed.

Many were present from neighboring congregations to attend services. At noon dinner was served to approximately 700 members of the Ladies Aid society. Visiting clergymen included the Rev. G. Boettcher and two daughters, of Hortonville; F. Weyland, Winchester; Rev. W. Zink, Dale; Rev. and Mrs. E. Redlin and daughter, Ellington; Rev. L. Mielke, Shiocton. Mrs. Timmel of North Fond du Lac and Mrs. Ziesemer of Appleton also were among those present.

The committee on subscriptions reported that $6,000 and about $1,500 in notes were received toward the lowering of the church debt, which at the beginning of the campaign carried on previous to the celebration amounted to $17,500. This leaves the debt at about $10,000. Members of the congregation together with the pastor, Rev. Walter Pankov expressed their satisfaction with the work in which the debt had been reduced, stating that it exceeded their expectations.

'Who Won The War?' Asked After Army-Navy 'Contest'

Honolulu — (AP) — An old question, "Who won the war?" bobbed up in new form here today as high United States army and navy officers gathered data to decide officially the outcome of the maneuvers ended Saturday.

The "war" between the "Black" forces defending the Hawaiian islands against an attempt of the "Blue" fighters to recapture them, was over after the blue fighters had succeeded in landing an army transported from the mainland. The official result will not be reached until after Thursday, when high officers of both arms and navy officers attack the question officially.

The entire United States battle fleet of 62 vessels participated in the attack, bringing into play the aircraft carriers Lexington and Saratoga, nine battleships, four cruisers, 25 destroyers, four submarines, two transports and auxiliary craft. The ships carried about 23,000 officers and men besides 600 marines and 600 soldiers.

The Black forces, representing an enemy which had captured the islands and was defending them against the Blue attackers, had only 15,000 men and 750 officers and were inferior both in airplanes and ships.

Blue forces maneuvers six days beyond the range of coast defense guns, sending airplanes to theoretically bomb Black defense positions and establishing a base at Hilo, 200 miles from here, before landing troops.

Some of the lessons of the maneuvers as related by officers were:

DRY ISSUES WILL HAVE THEIR DAY AT U. S. CAPITAL

All Phases of Problem to Be Aired at Senate Hearings

BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington — (AP) — Prohibition in all its phases is in for a thorough airing this winter on Capitol Hill with three senate committees conducting open hearings.

Two sub-committees of the judicial committee on the committee on manufactures—all headed by senators either in favor of repeal or re-submission — will start hearings shortly.

Senator John J. Blaine of Wisconsin, independent republican and implacable foe of prohibition, will head the major judiciary sub-committee which will look into the constitutional phases of the question suggested by the Bingham resolution calling for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. A federal investigator and famed for his tenacity of purpose, Blaine opposes prohibition as a matter of principle and has been outspoken in his opposition.

"Prohibition is unenforceable for the reason that it is fundamentally wrong," he has said on the floor of the senate. "Nothing short of actual repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act is acceptable."

The senate's premier yeoman and one of the country's foremost philanthropists—Jesse H. Metcalf of Rhode Island—will direct the course of the manufactures sub-committee in its investigation of the possibilities of legalization of 4 percent beer.

Metcalf favors returning to the states the control of the traffic and consumption of alcoholic beverages. "It is not an issue of whether we are to have alcohol or no alcohol," he says. "It is whether we are to adopt a new method of solving a perplexing social problem."

"The federal government properly has certain responsibilities and obligations which shall remain intact regardless of whether the eighteenth amendment to the constitution is retained or repealed."

Metcalf, quiet and generous, delights in philanthropy. On the eve of Christmas he gave away a savings bank in Providence, his home city, containing the holiday savings of more than 3,000 poor Italian workers, failed.

Although the bank was a competitor, the senator set up an office and announced that all losers could get their Christmas checks with interest by calling at his office. A total of 3,400 workers were paid.

Blaine is in a wide contrast with Metcalf in manner of approach. The Wisconsin senator is not about as sunny as his colleague or colleague to frenzy when he so desires. Brookhart of Iowa, a staunch dry, is one of his favorite targets. The two frequently battle on the question of prohibition.

Senator Felix Hebert of Rhode Island heads the third sub-committee. His group will consider the resolution to provide machinery for national referenda. The Rhode Islander is in favor of re-submission.

LARGE CROWD SEES THREE-ACT FARCE

"Cupid on the Spot" Presented by St. Theresa Sodality

Kaukauna—"Cupid on the Spot," a three-act farce by Homer H. Hubbert, was presented by the St. Theresa sodality of St. Mary Catholic church in the high school auditorium Sunday evening before a capacity crowd. Special acts of entertainment between acts were given by Leo Hennes, Roy and Kenneth Schermitzler, and F. Berg's orchestra.

The plot was centered about a group of society women intent upon matching two young persons. These two characters were portrayed by Cy Berg and Helen Nytes. They were introduced in the home of one of the thwarting women, and it appeared that they had already known each other, but had quarreled. Realizing the motives of the women, the two were reconciled and were married. Their marriage was kept a secret while they planned to punish the meddling women.

Preceding that she has fallen deeply in love with the young man, the young woman puts the ladies in distress by revealing that the man is unconcerned. As the man continues his indifferent attitude, the women become alarmed, and are almost in despair when the two young people reveal their marriage. Fear of humor was afforded through the antics of the women, who believed they had done the young woman great harm. The women were inventing stories to lower the man in the young woman's estimation to no avail when the marriage was revealed.

Included in the cast were: Lillian Smith, Magdalene Haupt, Gertrude Ditt, Louise Helms, Helen Nytes, Cy Berg, Leo Hennes, Elmer Otto, Edith Gerrits, Harold Renn, Anna Jakl.

Neenah ranks with DePere as a leader of the Northeastern Wisconsin conference, and eliminated the Kaws from the top of the league with the defeat at Neenah. One of the largest crowds to witness a game here is expected Friday evening because of the rivalry between the two schools. Kaukauna has never won a game from a Neenah high school team, although Neenah has had several narrow escapes from defeat here.

WILL CONSIDER SMALL BOATS IN FUTURE LEVIES

Proposed Rivers and Harbors Appropriations Conditions Are Changed

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington—Navigation needs of small pleasure craft and fishing boats in Wisconsin and other states will be considered along with aids to strictly commercial vessels hereafter in determining the merits of proposed rivers and harbors improvement projects under the provisions of a bill recently passed by Congress.

The Rivers and Harbors act of 1909 provides that the needs of commerce will be taken into consideration in making federal appropriations for navigation improvements throughout the country. This has usually been interpreted to apply solely to the needs of commercial vessels and many proposed navigation projects throughout the country have been unfavorably reported by the Rivers and Harbors Engineers on the grounds that they would chiefly benefit pleasure boating.

Defines Term

The new amendment specifies, however, that the term "commerce" shall include the use of waterways by seasonal passenger craft, yachts, house boats, fishing boats, motor boats and other similar water craft, whether or not operated for hire.

Passage of this amendment, if signed by President Hoover as expected, will undoubtedly improve Wisconsin's chances for obtaining government appropriations for river and harbor improvement projects in the state.

Against the bill it was urged, however, that the measure might be used as a loophole for obtaining appropriations for needless waste of public funds. Among those objecting to the measure on this score was Representative William E. Stafford of Milwaukee.

Advocates of the bill urged the need and justice of giving some protection for small individually owned craft as well as to large commercial boats and stressed the healthfulness of boating. In reply to these arguments, Stafford cited the catastrophe of the Eastland on the Great Lakes and blamed the hundreds of deaths which resulted from the capsizing of that ship on the neglect of federal inspectors.

"I have been in Detroit and have gone down the river to Bois Blanc and down to Put-in-Bay on steamers where there was an inadequate number of life-saving equipment to save the lives of people on overcrowded vessels, should there be need of it," said Rep. Stafford.

"I believe fundamentally that the government is best which comes closest to the people. I place the responsibility for the character of the pleasure craft on the lakes of Wisconsin and their protection upon the State of Wisconsin. Bring home any disaster to the officials of the State of Wisconsin and hold them responsible, not upon some bureaucrat down here who can escape responsibility."

Stafford also objected to the measure on the grounds that sponsors of the bill would put boys and girls out on the water. "The improvement of the automobile is in taking the boys and girls out of their homes, away from their parents, with the consequent debauchment, in many instances, that follows," he said.

That bill passed the House over the protests of Stafford and other opponents of the measure, however, and is hailed by some other members of the Wisconsin delegation as improving the state's opportunity for obtaining improvement which would contribute to the safety and enjoyment of boating and fishing in the lakes region and would, indirectly, give commercial benefit by attracting larger numbers of vacationists to the resort regions of the state.

Consideration of one of Representative Schaefer's private bills was rejected by blocked consideration by a fellow Wisconsin representative, Rep. William F. Stafford of Milwaukee, when the Schaefer bill was brought up for consideration on the House private calendar. Stafford objected to consideration of the bill which was to grant the estate of Franklin D. Clark, a Civil War veteran, the pension money which was taken over by the Board of Managers of the National Home for Volunteered Soldiers. The bill had been favorably reported from the committee but because of Stafford's objection the measure was passed over and will not be up for consideration again until the rest of the measure on the calendar have had their turn before the House.

Objecting to the application of this rule, which empowers one single objector to prevent the consideration of a bill, Schaefer took occasion to accuse "some of my Republican colleagues from Wisconsin, the self styled 100 per cent supporters of liberal rules," as being in part responsible for the rejection.

"Who have read the newspapers published not only in the state of Wisconsin but through our nation can not but reach the conclusion that some of my Republican colleagues from the state of Wisconsin have been posing as champions of liberalization of the house rules and violent foes of gag rules," said Schaefer.

"When the rules for this session were considered in the house, the Republicans were liberalizing amendments to offer which amendments included an amendment to take care of the consideration of private claim bills, and those amendments could not be offered when the rules were considered because a Democratic leader moved the previous question, which was carried by the vote of the entire Democratic membership and a few members elected on the Republican ticket. This motion cut off debate and prevented the offering of amendments."

"Therefore, private bills which have been favorably reported by a committee with a unanimous vote

Are China And Japan At War? Decide For Yourself

Washington—(AP)—Are China and Japan now actually at war?

The question, causing great discussion among authorities on international law, finds conflicting answers.

The league of nations Shanghai commission reported to the league council in Geneva that "the state of open war exists" at Shanghai.

Quincy Wright, professor of international law at the University of Chicago, said in an address: "Japan and China are not at war, because neither has expressed an intention to make war. However, if hostilities reach sufficient magnitude, it would doubtless be in the competence of third states to regard war as existing."

Popular and legal definitions of war vary greatly and have changed and developed with international practice through the centuries.

In fact there are several kinds of wars and the definitions of these are so varied that a "perfect" war is when the struggle exists between whole states. An "imperfect" war is one which is limited as to places, persons and things. And a "solemn" war is one begun by formal declaration.

Another sort of war recognized by legal authorities is "quasi" war. This type of war existed between France and the United States in 1793. The United States did not declare war on France, but American and French frigates made captures and finally exchanged prisoners.

In the Boxer rebellion of 1900 many foreign nations sent troops against China to protect their citizens and property and there was a concerted military movement of these forces for the relief of Peking, where the foreign colonies were under siege for 70 days. War was not declared by any of the foreign powers, but the fighting was followed by a treaty exactly as if there had been war and China was forced to pay heavy indemnities for the losses suffered by foreigners.

As China and Japan are both members of the league of nations and desired to comply with the covenant of the league, or at least to appear to comply with it, there seems little likelihood that either will formally declare war even if the struggle at Shanghai becomes a major military clash. Both rest on the claim they are merely fighting to protect treaty rights.

A declaration of war by Japan in connection with the Shanghai trouble might result in even more serious complications with other nations interested in the foreign concessions at Shanghai. A blockade of a port like Shanghai, jointly controlled by several nations, would offer endless possibilities for international disputes.

Lawrence Cagers Bury Ripon Aggregation Under 33 To 16 Score

VIKES DISPLAY REAL CLASS IN TILT WITH REDS

Martin Basketeers Hopelessly Outclassed by Denneymen

BY DON CHRISTIANSEN
Opening with a whirlwind attack that piled up an 8 to 0 lead in the first few minutes of play, the Lawrence college football squad swamped their traditional rivals, the Ripon cagers, 32 to 16, in a Mid-West and Big Four conference battle at Alexander gymnasium Saturday evening.

Saturday's win not only avenged a beating at Ripon a few weeks ago, but moved the Vikings back into the running for Big Four championship honors. By winning at Beloit and Carroll early next month the Blues will tie with Carroll for the conference lead.

Although forced to leave the game in the second half after committing his fourth personal foul, Bill Colbert, lanky Lawrence forward, took high scoring honors with three baskets and six free throws for a total of 12 points. Rafto, Viking center, was second in scoring with four buckets.

Ripon Aes Held
Glenn Johnson, Ripon ace and leader in big four scoring, was held to only one basket and three free throws. Unable to threaten while working in the center position for the Redmen, Johnson was shifted to right forward but was still unable to elude the Lawrence defense.

A large number of fouls marred the contest. Witte and Dine called 19 on Lawrence and 15 on the visitors.

An enthusiastic crowd watched the Vikings, clearly the superior team, pile up a 20 to 9 lead during the first half and triple the Ripon count with a 30 to 10 total early in the second period. A brief Ripon rally, late in the final period, was held to six points and Denny sent in his substitutes to finish the game, leaving Willie Haase at guard to act as a balance wheel.

The probable result of the evening's activities was indicated early in the first period when the Vikings left Ripon flat footed while chalking up an eight point advantage. Haase sank a field goal at close range, Colbert repeated. Vanderbloemen followed Runyon's foul with a successful free toss, Colbert sank a free throw, Rafto dropped a basket through the netting, and Ripon, still scoreless, took time out.

Rally Is Brief
As play was resumed, Johnson, heralded as Ripon's greatest threat, called up the first point for the visitors on a free throw and E. Smith made it eight to four on a free toss and a basket. The rally was brief however, and the Blues began piling up a lead that was never threatened during the remainder of the game.

Colbert scored twice on free throws and Haase added another point for Lawrence with a free throw following a double foul with Klage. Johnson escaped for a moment and sank a basket for Ripon, tipped in after Martin had missed a free shot, but Colbert retaliated with a free throw, two spectacular field goals, and another free throw for Lawrence.

Martin's free toss and a basket by Meyer completed Ripon scoring for the first time. Johnson, working at forward for the Vikings, sank free tosses, and Rafto and Vanderbloemen added another four points on field goals. The half ended with the Blues on the long end of a 20 to 9 tally and the game pretty well in the bag.

Rafto Leads Attack
With Rafto now leading the attack from the center position, the Lawrence cagers enjoyed another scoring spree as the second period opened and added eight points to their lead before the visitors could swing into action. Rafto opened with a one handed shot that swished through the netting, Colbert and Karsten scored on free throws, Haase tossed in a two pointer and Rafto repeated.

Ripon moved back into the score line when Johnson sank the first free throw that followed Bill Colbert's fourth personal foul, but Karsten retaliated with two successful free shots and the Vikings took time out.

J. Smith, performing at center for the Red men with Johnson shifted to forward, staged a single handed rally late in the period, adding five points to the Ripon total on two baskets and a free throw, all scored in rapid succession. Rafto sank another basket and brought the Lawrence total to 32 points, and Denny sent in his second string to finish the fracas. A free throw by Johnson of Ripon, bringing the final count to 32 to 16, completed scoring for the evening.

Lawrence Frosh Win
The Lawrence frosh, led by Dave Jones, romped to an easy 27 to 11 victory over the Ripon cagers in a preliminary contest. Jones, working in the pivot position, sank six baskets and two free throws for a total of 14 points.

TWO RIVERS FIVE SINKS KIMBERLY QUINT, 41 TO 27

Delmore Aggregation Has Little Trouble in Walloping Clubbers

Kimberly—"Doc" Delmore's American legion cagers took advantage of the Kimberly's inability to react right on a slippery floor and took the Clubbers into camp at Two Rivers last Friday by a 41 to 27 count. Elmer Becker and Puppeter led the onslaught on the hoop for the winners. The former connected eight times with also two gift shots, and the latter made six buckets. "Buck" LeMay threw aside his stiff neck Thursday and then came through with six buckets to lead the Clubbers. Gossens chalked up four buckets.

Both teams battled on even terms for the entire first period, which closed 10 all. In the second period the Two Rivers cagers pulled away and at the end of the half had a 22-15 lead. The third period was close and scoring about even. But the Clubbers were not able to overcome their opponent's lead. The period ended 31-23. Then the winners with a series of long shots put the game on ice in the last period.

KIMBERLY CAGERS WALLOP BEAR CREEK

Harper "Red Devil" Team Bury Invaders Under 33 to 16 Score

Kimberly—Coach Harper's "Red Devil" cagers gave basketball fans a treat last Friday night when they ran wild and smothered the Bear Creek cagers in a conference game by a score of 33 to 16.

The Bear Creek lads were outclassed and were forced to play the defense during most of the engagement. The Kimberly squad started fast and continued to pile up the score from the opening minutes of play.

Edward Hofkins sank six baskets to steal scoring honors for the home aggregation. Moriarty of the invading crew sank three baskets and made good a gift shot to take scoring honors.

Gibson Admits He Had Eye On Manager's Job

BY JOHN B. FOSTER

NEW YORK, (CPA)—George Gibson, who manages the Pittsburgh team this year, had an eye on it almost all of the latter part of last summer, he now confides. He visited the late Barney Dreyfuss more than once and he didn't go from Canada to Pittsburgh merely to pass a vacation in the coal smoke.

RINGSIDE SEERS DISCUSS ABILITY OF GERMAN PUGS

Matchmaker Engel Bemoans Fact That He Overlooked Schmeling

BY WILBUR WOOD
Copyright, 1932 by Cons. Press

NEW YORK—The boys in the managerial hangout at Madison Square Garden were viewing with alarm which is about the best they they do. This time the subject happened to be foreign fistic menace.

"You see what that German heavy-weight, Adolph Heuser, did to George Manley in Cleveland?" squawked one member of the arm-chair brigade. "Manley is the guy that beat Maxie Rosenbloom twice and now this German belts him out in five rounds."

That was the signal for George Engel, who has been spouting about the German menace for years, to go into his monologue. Engel, who used to manage Harry Greb, Frank Klaus and other good German-American fighters, always bursts into a loud cheer when one of the lads from over the Rhine crashes through with a victory.

"You guys can have the Italians and the Frenchmen and the Poles and all the rest of the foreigners if you'll let me have the Germans," he cried. "This Heuser is pretty good, but I got a German heavy coming over soon, Heinie Mueller by name, who'll punch him and a lot of others full of holes."

Bets On German
"I was the first one to predict a German would win a world championship," yelled Engel, wanting to his work. "Five years ago I predicted a German would hold a championship within five years and within three years Max Schmeling won the heavy-weight title. He is only the first of many."

As Engel paused for breath a bird in the corner piped up. "Who brought over Rudl Wagner?" he said.

That apparently innocent remark hit Engel in a vital spot. He was groggy. "I plead guilty," he moaned. "What's the use?"

Maybe you were fortunate enough to be among the missing the night Wagner, imported by Tex Rickard upon Engel's recommendation, made his American debut against Big Eey Peterson in the Garden. Peterson won the decision after ten terrible rounds.

"That Wagner cost me maybe a million dollars," wailed Engel. "I was so disgusted over the way he fell down that I passed up a chance to take over Max Schmeling. What a chump I was! I had been shouting for years that the German fighters were going to surprise the world and then, just because Wagner was a flake I got sore and passed up Schmeling. Maybe this Mueller will make up for me what I lost when I didn't grab Schmeling."

Baseball Hopefuls
The Cincinnati Reds need hitting power. Perhaps Joe Morrissey, late of St. Paul, may furnish a few batting fireworks.

Morrissey, who was born in Warren, R. I., in 1905, started out as an outfielder but he has been playing the infield for the last few years. Starred with Holy Cross college. He signed with Hamilton in 1926 and after a term with that club and with Clarksville, W. Va., and Evansville he went to St. Paul as a short stop. He batted .331 last season.

A right hander, Morrissey is six feet one inch tall.

PEWAUKEE LAKE ICE RACES START TODAY

Pewaukee—(P)—Weather permitting, the twice postponed series of challenge races for the International Heart cup will get under way today on upper Pewaukee Lake.

Lack of wind prevented the opening sprints yesterday after a postponement Saturday because of damage in transit to the two boats entered by the Four Lakes Ice Yacht club of Madison.

Henry Meyer, holder of the cup, and Starke Meyer are the defenders representing the Pewaukee Lake Ice Yacht club. Frank Tetzlapp and Fred Jungbluth are the challengers.

Three out of five races over a 26 mile windward and return course will determine the winner.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS ... By Laufer

THEY ALL LAUGHED WHEN HEINIE MUELLER fooled the bleachers but Manager Branch Rickey of the Cardinals and Pitcher Bill Doak. The Cardinals were playing the Giants in St. Louis. Mueller, in left field, was instructed to advance toward the infield on the signal for a slow ball and play deep on the sign for a fast one. As he ostentatiously tramped in and paraded back, the smart Sportsmen's Park sun fans got wise. "Slow ball," they chanted when Heinie crept in. "Fast ball!" they yelled when he retreated. Suddenly Mueller marched in on the sign for a fast one and the Giant batter smacked one over Mueller's head. It broke up the ball game. "What seemed to be the difficulty?" asked Rickey as Heinie came in. "Aw, that gang in the bleachers were hep to the signs," said Heinie, "and I decided to cross them." "What chance have I got?" yelled Bill Doak. "All I have to do is cross up the batters, but Heinie crosses up the customers."

Displaying unusual offensive and defensive strength, the Bears Saturday night moved into a tie with the Pure Milk Co. aggregation for first place by defeating the Fox River Paper Co., crew, 35 to 14.

In the other fracas on the evening's card, the United Cigars strengthened their lead in Industrial league competition by trouncing the soldiers of Co. D. to the tune of 59 to 29.

Wynberg walked off with scoring honors for the bears by sinking six field goals and one gift shot. Kneip was second with four field goals and Versteeg followed with three ringers and one free throw. Gelbke starred for the papermakers by sinking three baskets and one gift shot.

The United Cigars had little difficulty in finding the basket. Notable was Hamilton in 1926 and after a term with that club and with Clarksville, W. Va., and Evansville he went to St. Paul as a short stop. He batted .331 last season.

BLUE-STREAKS MEET FONDY SIX TONIGHT

Pucksters to Clash at 8 O'clock on Rink in Jones Park

With the rink in better shape now than it has been for some time, Appleton's Eagle Blue-Streaks tonight will clash with American legion pucksters of Fond du Lac at Jones park. It was announced this morning. The fracas is due to get underway at 8 o'clock.

The Fond du Lac organization will bring with it a puckster by the name of Campbell. Campbell, a Canadian, has been thrilling crowds at Fondy and surrounding territory with his demonstrations of how the little game of hockey is played.

The Appleton aggregation is much the same sextet that has been functioning on the rink so far this season.

Purdue Starts Drive For Western Conference Title

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO—(P)—With Northwestern, the pace-setter and defending champion, showing definite signs of cracking, Purdue will make its bid for the leadership of the Western conference basketball title race this week.

The Boiler-makers will start tonight, meeting Ohio State at LaFayette, and if successful against the Buckeyes, will be in a spot to go to the top by defeating Northwestern Saturday night.

Northwestern, after squeezing out three one-point victories in its battle to retain the lead, finally sagged Saturday night and lost to Iowa, 30 to 26. The Hawkeyes, a very indifferent outfit which failed to win a game during the first half of the season, continued to show improvement and were at the top of their game against the Wildcats, which suffered their first defeat in nine games.

Purdue scored its fourth victory in five games at the expense of Chicago, 40 to 27. The Maroons made a real battle of it until late in the last period, but wilted and the Boiler-makers cracked in 16 points while holding the losers to three. It was Chicago's sixth straight defeat of the campaign.

Minnesota Loses
Minnesota, rated an excellent bet for at least a tie for the title, slipped and took a 27 to 22 beating from Indiana at Bloomington. The defeat dropped the Gophers into third place behind Purdue, and left them with a record of five victories and two defeats. In the other game, two States repeated over Illinois winning by 29 to 26, after a battle in which the lead shifted regularly.

Northwestern will be idle tonight, but there will be plenty of activity in the league. Michigan will return to the battle against Iowa at Ann Arbor, and needs to win to remain in the race. Minnesota will meet Illinois at Champaign, and also must win to continue as a contender. Wisconsin and Indiana will clash at Bloomington, with little clinging on the result.

In addition to the Purdue-Northwestern western conference Saturday night Michigan will play at Illinois; Indiana and Iowa will meet at Iowa City, Wisconsin tackles Minnesota on the latter's floor, and Ohio State meets Chicago at Chicago.

REIFF HEADS SCORING IN BIG TEN TOURNEY

Chicago—(P)—Joe Reiff of Northwestern, today was still leading the Big Ten Basketball individual scoring contest with 78 points but with his opposition closing in.

Behind the northwestern forward was Howard Moffitt of Iowa, who scored eight points in the Hawkeye victory over the Wildcats Saturday, to bring his total to 63. Reiff had played in eight contests and had an average of just less than 10 points, while Johnny Wooden of Purdue, fourth with 52 points, had an average of better than 10 points.

Purdue had the best scoring average, 37.2 points per game, while Michigan had the best defensive mark, having held opponents to an average of 22.5.

RULES COMMITTEE ADOPTS CHANGES IN GRID REGULATIONS

Six Drastic Modifications of Playing Code Are Outlined

Hanover, N. H.—(P)—The National football rules committee announced six drastic modifications of the playing code today.

In an effort to check the "tendency toward increasing injuries" the committee decided:

1.—To restrict the formation of the team receiving the kickoff by requiring that five players of the receiving team remain on their 40 yard line until the ball is kicked; and to allow the kickoff to be made with or by place-kick, punt or drop-kick.

2.—To forbid players on the defense to strike an opponent on the head, neck or face with hand, wrist, forearm or elbow.

3.—To liberalize the substitutions rule to allow a player withdrawn from the game to re-enter once in any subsequent period.

4.—To forbid use of the flying block or tackle.

5.—To make the ball "dead" when part of the ball carrier's body except his hands or feet touches the ground.

6.—To amplify the rule regarding equipment so as to require padding of head and unyielding substances with felt, foam rubber or other soft padding at least three eighths of an inch thick.

These changes were termed by chairman U. K. Hall the "most important, in making the game safe for the players, since the modifications of 1906 and 1907."

Although it had been found that the "so-called fatality list accredited to football was more than 50 per cent entirely misleading and inaccurate," Hall said, the committee had noted an increasing number of injuries, due, it was believed, to the "intensive development of the open game."

"The result," Hall explained, "has been to bring into the game certain practices or styles of play, most of them entirely legitimate and within the spirit of the rules, which are tending in the opinion of the committee to bring into the game certain new sources of hazard of the players."

It is to combat this tendency that the modifications have been adopted.

BLUE-STREAKS LOSE TO WEST BEND, 9-2

Appleton Pucksters Are No Match for Burckard's Fast Skaters

Last of practice showed up against the Appleton Eagle Blue-Streaks Sunday afternoon in their match against the West Bend Legionnaires, and caused them to lose by a score of 9 to 2. The game was played on the rink at West Bend.

Off their skates for a week, the Blue-Streaks were no match for the West Bend aggregation in the 16-18-20-22-24-26-28-30-32-34-36-38-40-42-44-46-48-50-52-54-56-58-60-62-64-66-68-70-72-74-76-78-80-82-84-86-88-90-92-94-96-98-100-102-104-106-108-110-112-114-116-118-120-122-124-126-128-130-132-134-136-138-140-142-144-146-148-150-152-154-156-158-160-162-164-166-168-170-172-174-176-178-180-182-184-186-188-190-192-194-196-198-200-202-204-206-208-210-212-214-216-218-220-222-224-226-228-230-232-234-236-238-240-242-244-246-248-250-252-254-256-258-260-262-264-266-268-270-272-274-276-278-280-282-284-286-288-290-292-294-296-298-300-302-304-306-308-310-312-314-316-318-320-322-324-326-328-330-332-334-336-338-340-342-344-346-348-350-352-354-356-358-360-362-364-366-368-370-372-374-376-378-380-382-384-386-388-390-392-394-396-398-400-402-404-406-408-410-412-414-416-418-420-422-424-426-428-430-432-434-436-438-440-442-444-446-448-450-452-454-456-458-460-462-464-466-468-470-472-474-476-478-480-482-484-486-488-490-492-494-496-498-500-502-504-506-508-510-512-514-516-518-520-522-524-526-528-530-532-534-536-538-540-542-544-546-548-550-552-554-556-558-560-562-564-566-568-570-572-574-576-578-580-582-584-586-588-590-592-594-596-598-600-602-604-606-608-610-612-614-616-618-620-622-624-626-628-630-632-634-636-638-640-642-644-646-648-650-652-654-656-658-660-662-664-666-668-670-672-674-676-678-680-682-684-686-688-690-692-694-696-698-700-702-704-706-708-710-712-714-716-718-720-722-724-726-728-730-732-734-736-738-740-742-744-746-748-750-752-754-756-758-760-762-764-766-768-770-772-774-776-778-780-782-784-786-788-790-792-794-796-798-800-802-804-806-808-810-812-814-816-818-820-822-824-826-828-830-832-834-836-838-840-842-844-846-848-850-852-854-856-858-860-862-864-866-868-870-872-874-876-878-880-882-884-886-888-890-892-894-896-898-900-902-904-906-908-910-912-914-916-918-920-922-924-926-928-930-932-934-936-938-940-942-944-946-948-950-952-954-956-958-960-962-964-966-968-970-972-974-976-978-980-982-984-986-988-990-992-994-996-998-1000-1002-1004-1006-1008-1010-1012-1014-1016-1018-1020-1022-1024-1026-1028-1030-1032-1034-1036

CHINESE WAIT FOR ATTACK BY TOKIO TROOPS

50,000 Reported Ready to Meet 25,000 Invaders in Shanghai Zone

pleated unloading troops and supplies in the Whangpoo near Woosung. Official estimates said 25,000 Japanese soldiers already were on the ground. Yesterday and Sunday the Japanese troops were stopped through the international settlement on the way to the Chapel and Woosung fronts.

Several Japanese cotton mills and other factories and warehouses beyond the city limits were in use as temporary points of concentration. There were reports from Tokio that the Japanese government, in view of indications that the Chinese are determined to put up a stubborn fight, was considering sending additional reinforcements.

United States consular authorities advised all Americans in outlying places in the lower Yangtze valley to evacuate these towns and come to Shanghai because of the possibility of widespread hostilities. Other foreigners also were reported evacuating interior towns.

Thousands of additional Japanese troops unloaded from four more transports in the river today and marched to quarters, accompanied by artillery, machine gun equipment and a hospital corps. Headquarters announced that further detachments are expected shortly. The total number of Japanese troops here now was given as approximately 50,000.

General Tsal Ting-Kang, commander of the Chinese troops in the area, said two new divisions have been added to his army, bringing the total number of Chinese soldiers now ready to oppose the expected big Japanese thrust to 50,000. The two new divisions, the Chinese said, comprised 20,000 men.

The forces of the foreign powers, after the arrival of a French contingent which is expected shortly, will number slightly more than 10,000 troops.

There were many other signs of Chinese preparations to resist to the utmost a new Japanese advance on Shanghai. New howitzer batteries have been brought into the fighting zone and the Chinese soldiers working in the trenches have been reinforced. Lines of trenches and barbed wire barricades were being established some distance back of the front and additional ammunition supplies were issued to the machine gun detachments.

The American consulate said its advice to Americans to evacuate interior cities had gone to a number of places within 100 miles of Shanghai, including Soochow, where 400 Americans live. It was also sent to Wushih, Changchow, Kiangyin and Changchou. About 65 Americans live in the latter group of towns.

The Chinese armies also seemed preparing to insure an orderly and dogged retreat if they should find it necessary to fall back before the advance of the Japanese. Most of the new troops have been assigned to the Kiangnan sector in which there has considerable action during the past week.

The belief was expressed by Chinese military authorities that the Japanese plan much of their offensive action for this vicinity.

Foreign Areas Menaced
A number of Japanese shells fell in the waters patrolled by United States destroyers and American and English members of the Shanghai volunteer corps during a bombardment today.

The volunteer corps withdrew for safety's sake, but they emerged again after the shelling was over. About a dozen shells, most of them duds, fell within the marines' area. Several others landed among the volunteers. No one was injured. The bombardment was directed against Chinese positions.

Throughout the day Japanese soldiers streamed ashore from transports in the river to swell the thousands now here awaiting the promised battle. With them came Red Cross and hospital units, with first aid equipment on their backs, machine guns units and eight heavy field guns, each drawn by six horses.

PRICES DECLINE ON CHICAGO STOCK MART

Chicago —(P)— Heavy offerings of Insull shares led to sharp downturns today in the Chicago stock exchange.

Insull ventures of 1940 tumbled to 20 1/2. The fall accompanied publication of the company's annual statement. Insull common shares dipped to 10 1/2. Similar recessions took place in securities of allied companies.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

London — Trading on the stock exchange opened with a burst of strength on favorable wall street news and hopes regarding reparations. Dealings started earlier than usual and prices hardened all around, led by American issues and industrial stocks. Some profit-taking occurred in the afternoon but closing was good with general net gains. Argentine rails advancing one point.

Berlin — Buying on the strength of Hindenburgs presidential announcement and influenced by Wall Street gains on Saturday brought about gains of one to seven points in stock shares today.

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York —(P)— The stock market experienced the inevitable setback today that follows the sort of breath-taking uprush of the past two sessions of trading.

The market slid back rather precipitately in the early dealings, but soon managed to dig in its heels. A morning recovery was interrupted by adverse copper dividend news, but the list turned slowly upward again later, regaining a part of the decline. Price averages indicated that only about one-fourth of last week's upturn has been lost, trading declined to less than half of Saturday's volume.

Early losses ranged from 1 to 5 points in leading issues. This was more than half regained, before a second sinking spell intervened. Leaders sank a point or more above the morning lows by early afternoon. American Telephone dropped 1/2 to 117 1/2, rebounded to 121, fell back to 120 1/2, and again turned upward. U. S. Steel fluctuated similarly, getting down as much as 2 1/2 points.

Auburn dropped nearly 7 points. Utah Copper, a thinly traded issue, dropped 14 points on its dividend omission. Kennecott and Anaconda lost 2 1/2 and 3 1/2, respectively. The loss of the regular dividend announcement. Extreme losses of 2 to 4 were numerous, appearing in such issues as American Can, Case, Sears, American Tobacco "B," Consolidated Gas, General Electric Westinghouse, Allied Chemical and others.

Commission houses reported a distinct revival of public interest in the market but noted that buyers were decidedly cautious, after the several false starts of the past two years. On the whole, however, market sentiment remained much improved. This was apparent in an abrupt upturn in the price of stock exchange seats, one selling at $161,000, a gain of $25,000 from last week.

Omission of common dividends by Kennecott Copper, and its two subsidiaries, Utah and Nevada, as well as by International Nickel, had been rather widely expected, in view of the consistently unprofitable prices at which the red metal has been selling. Dupont ordered the regular quarterly payment of $1 a share, as most of the new issues, despite the recent reduction by General Motors, in which Dupont is the leading stockholder.

Transamerica stock was virtually unaffected by the return of the Glanville interests to control of the corporation. Reports that the new management would follow highly conservative policies led Wall Street observers to expect little immediate change.

REALIZING SALES HALT CURB RALLY

Prices Recede Under Heavy Profit-taking — Volume Also in Decline

New York —(P)— Realizing sales checked the rally on the curb market today. After a firm opening, prices receded slowly under profit-taking, but volume showed a sharp decline from Saturday's large turnover.

A few stocks which had not participated in the advance attempted to catch up with the rise, but they were mostly inactives. Generally speaking, leaders showed losses ranging from a fraction to a point or slightly more which kept the decline within normal proportions. Electric Bond and Share dipped below 12. Commonwealth Edison, after opening 8 points higher, more than yielded its rise. Standard Oil of Indiana and Gulf, together with Swift International, Deere, Stutz and Aluminum of America were heavy but quiet.

Considerable interest was attached to the Insull investment Trust issues because of official forecasts that a merger was likely, either between the two—Insull Utility and Corporation securities or Chicago—or with another company under the same general management. Both issues reacted. Their investment portfolios have had large shrinkage.

The metal market showed unsettled by unfavorable dividend actions taken by several companies, notably Kennecott Copper and International Nickel. Such steps called attention to the industry's problems and had a moderate effect on such curb issues at Newmont Mining and New Jersey Zinc.

HOPE TO STEADY LIVESTOCK PRICES

Seasonal Weather May Aid Traders in Efforts to Maintain Levels

Chicago —(P)— Supplies of swine, estimated at 60,000 for the first Monday in Lent, were too liberal. Several weakening factors undermined the market at the outset, but more seasonable weather furnished the basis for the hope that price levels would be maintained. First transactions were weak to 10c lower than Friday's average, but were no lower than Saturday's low figures.

Good to choice 180-200 lbs. animals crossed the scale at $4.10-4.15 packers received 25,000 hogs on through billing.

Cold storage holdings in the United States as of Feb. 1, including slaughter houses, show a big increase in pork and pork products notwithstanding the comparatively small receipts of hogs during January. This is accounted for principally by the falling off of local and domestic demand, which made it necessary for killers to store the product.

Cattle trade had a dull start and potential demand was not broad enough to assure a rapid clearance of the moderate run offered here today. Aggregate supplies in twelve leading markets were not cut enough to meet the reduced requirements of the trade. Packers had no direct receipts, but held back during the forenoon.

Only 10,000 live muttons arrived in the local sheep sheds, smallest Monday run since July. Packers had no direct whatever and were obliged to seek killing material in the open market. Sharply higher prices were demanded.

SALE OF LIQUOR PRESCRIPTIONS IN CONTROVERSY

Physician Charges Profession Has Abused Privilege

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright, 1932, By Cons. Press
Chicago (CPA)—Quite a controversy has arisen within the medical profession over the extent to which physicians have utilized the liquor prescriptions to augment their income.

Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, chief of the department of surgery at the Presbyterian hospital here, and former president of the American Medical association, finds himself the storm center. Dr. Bevan testified before a senatorial committee that 90 per cent of the liquor prescriptions issued by doctors had a bootleg tinge.

He intimated that the 400 prescriptions allowed each year enabled physicians, particularly those whose income was not large, to earn at least $1,200 additional each year through sale at three dollars each.

There were intimations today that the accusing doctor might be called before the ethics committee of the Chicago Medical society to defend his statements. The journal of the American Medical association, delivered today, contains an editorial assault on the testimony of the doctor. Many prominent physicians likewise have risen to the attack privately.

Lack Of Confidence
The medical association journal remarked that Dr. Bevan displayed "an extraordinary lack of confidence in his professional brethren." It went on to say that:

"If Dr. Bevan has actual evidence that any physician is selling his prescriptions en masse in order to permit bootleggers and bootleggers to dispose of whisky in case lots, he, and all of those who possess the information, are equally guilty with those who are violating the law in permitting the violation. If he has not the evidence he is, certainly without warrant in making such a statement.

His statement reflects great discredit on a profession whose ideals were certainly as high as those of any other professional group. As a leader of that profession for one year he should be more familiar than he seems to be with its ethical standards and with the extent to which physicians actually are guided by a proper appreciation of moral values."

Dr. Bevan has not backed down from his stand which included a denial that liquor had any medicinal value. The medical journal in its editorial deplored the practice of physicians in testifying "beyond their scientific opinions regarding the effects of alcoholic liquor."

Your Birthday

BY MARY BLAKE
"AQUARIUS"

If February 16th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to noon, from 4 p. m. to 5:15 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:20 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Unfavorable astrological influences will still remain in force on February 16th, and certain dreams will receive a shattering blow from an unexpected quarter. If important business negotiations are in progress, it is a most critical time, and tactful and intelligent moves are called for.

Children born on this February 16th will have studious, busy minds, and will be quick and accurate in everything which they do. They will be very fond of an argument, and will argue for argument's sake. They will never "hide their light under a bushel," and will be clever self-advertisers.

Born on February 16th, you will always play second-fiddle in the orchestra of life, although you feel chronically hurt and disappointed not to be able to join the Star players. You have allowed feelings of unworthiness and inadequacy to master you, because you cannot throw off your exaggerated inferiority complex. You try to hide this handicap through many psychological defense mechanisms. When you feel the smallest and weakest within, you put on a false front of over-confidence and may become bombastic, pompous or snobbish. The larger

To Relieve Catarrh And Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness or head noises due to catarrh will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that frequently effects relief after other treatments fail. Sufferers who could scarcely hear, have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. So if you know some one who is troubled with catarrhal deafness or head noises due to catarrh, cut this out and hand it to him, and you may save the poor sufferer from total deafness. The medicine can be prepared at home as follows:

Secure from Schlitz Bros. or your druggist a 1 oz. bottle of Farmitin (Double Strength). Take this home, and add to it 1 pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Farmitin is used this way to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, and also to correct any excess secretion in the middle ear. The results it gives are nearly always quick and effective. Every person who has catarrh should give Farmitin a trial. Adv.

LIFE'S ODDITIES

By George Clark

"The mild winter they've been having at home has almost spoiled this trip for the wife."

your show of superiority to others, the more inferior you feel yourself. You try to raise your self-importance by criticising others. You try to fill boots too large for you, which only breeds unhappiness and discontent.

Your tastes and domestic ideals are as cautious as your expenditures. You are the sort of person that loves not woman or man, but a woman, or a man. You will love wholeheartedly but once. If you be a man, you are chock full of romantic chivalry.

In your work, you are industrious, ambitious, persistent, but without much initiative. It would be well for you to specialize along some line which interests you, as you are not capable of doing anything and everything well. A proper training would help to increase your self-confidence. You are extremely honest, and you have a great fear of debts.

QUAINT AND ANTIQUE PLAYS ARE POPULAR WITH STOCK GROUPS

Various Types of Productions Being Presented in Cities

BY WARD MOREHOUSE

New York (CPA)—Stock company directors still go in for the quaint, the antique and even the fantastic in the matter of play selection. At Denver they've just done "A Doll's House," at Baltimore "Mary Rose," at Salt Lake "The Great Divide," at St. Paul "The Lion and the Mouse," at Portland, "Con- vict 933," at Springfield, Mass. "Clouds and Sunshine," and at Flint, Mich. "The Untamed Virgin."

Stock company miscellanies: Francis X. Bushman has been playing at Danbury, Conn. Charles Ray has been getting in abundant work with "A Man's Man." Mrs. Leslie Carter has been stock-starring all over the place in "The Shaughal Gesture."

Mary Hart's St. Louis company finally blew up and she'll try another town. Jessie Bonstelle is giving Sunday night performances in Detroit at a 50-cent top. Melville Burke has been invited to return to Skowhegan to direct for a second summer season. Elitch's, Denver, a celebrated summer playhouse, will renew its activities in May. Chamberlain Brown expects to do "The Girl of the Golden West" at Mount Vernon.

Edith Barrett was the busiest "Guest Star" in the east last summer. Who'll have the honor in 1932? Lawrence Langner will probably start his second summer season at Westport in June. And there'll be drama again at Greenwich, Stamford, Newport, Cape Cod, Southampton and probably Woodstock.

O. P. Haggie, returning to the theatre after a long absence, heads the cast that will enact "They Don't Mean Any Harm," the A. A. Milne play, for Charles Hopkins, associate players are Flora Sheffield, Gav. in Muir, Patricia Calvert, Ernest Lawford, Verno Kelso, Richie Ling, Molly Pearson and Clare St. Claire.

Eddie Dowling, musical comedy performer you will remember from "Honeymoon Lane," has turned producer and his first show will be a melodrama of the Parisian underworld, "Homestead." It is a dramat-

"His Raiment Was White as the Light"

(Read Matthew 17:1-3.)
Peter, James and John were the first who saw Christ, the Light, transfigured in visible form so that the very garment that He wore was radiant with a supernatural brightness. Since then, others, too, have gone with Him into a high mountain apart; and have received a vision whose splendor should never afterward be forgotten. We may share it only provided that we are willing to accept the discipline of a spiritual mountain-climb. We believe that Christ is calling up to come. We are prepared for the ascent. We will

COP CURBS COUGH

Gets quick relief thru Triple Action

"During a recent blizzard I caught a beauty. What a cough! I was miserable. The druggist on my beat gave me a bottle of Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. In less than no time—in fact after the first swallow—I began to get better. The soreness in my head, nose and throat disappeared—and very soon I stopped coughing altogether. Smith Brothers' is great stuff for coughs and colds all right!" J. V. Ahlquist, Rockford, Ill.
